New Therapy Techniques Developed To Aid in Recovery of Stroke Victims

"A severe stroke is one of the most devastating experiences that can happen to a human being."

So writes Anne R. Somers in an introductory chapter to a book on gerontology and clinical geriatrics of which she is co-editor. Mrs. Somers, a protessor at Rutgers Medical School, knows whereot she speaks, both from a professional and a personal point of view.

Benjamin Wright
A Stroke Network Is Needed

Her husband, H.M. "Red" Somers, protessor ot politics and public affairs at Princeton, had a combined automobile accident and stroke in August, 1979, while driving home from his office at the Woodrow Wilson School. After many weeks in the intensive care unit of Princeton Medical Center, and months of rehabilitation in Merwick and at Burke Institute ot Rehabilitation in White Plains, Prot. Somers is at home confined to a wheel chair. A big man, known for his seminal writings on his own and with his wife, in the field of health care and policy, he Is unable to speak, read, write or walk, except in a very limited way.

Terry Murphy, wite ot Prof. Walter Murphy, has been luckler. Mrs. Murphy is a tormer public health nurse who was the home-care planner tor Princeton Medical Center for tour years. She resigned that post to accompany her husband to Rome for a year while he wrote "Vicar of Christ," and later, while in Chicago on a publicIty tour for the book, she was stricken wlth a severe cerebral hemorrhage.

At first it was not clear whether she would survive, let alone speak or be able to walk. But Mrs. Murphy, who like Prot. Somers spent months in hospitals, has regained her speech, substituting other words for those she can't recall, and is proud ot the fact that she walks without the cane or leg brace she was discharged with. She has been expecially tortunate in having Lucille Rodriguez as her home-health aide.

Lucille has taken a particular interest and initiative in Mrs. Murphy's continuing rehabilitation and assists her daily in exercises to regain the use of her right arm. Together they work with a newly developed "bio-conditioner machine," which they used first with a doctor in New York City and more recently have been able to bring home.

Looking like a work processor, the machine gives visual and audio feedback trom muscular movements through electrical impulses from sensors attached to the limb being exercised. "Wrong" movements, noted instantly, can be corrected, and tiny improvements, perhaps imperceptible to the patient, are detected and recorded. Improvement provides the hope which is essential for keeping on with the often paintul routine.

"The Garage Referendum," Last Fall's Smash Hit, May Be Revived for Another Production in March

If all the actors play their roles as before, Borough voters will once again re-enact that autumn smash hit, "The Garage Referendum." The one-night stand: perhaps early in March.

Judge Samuel Lenox ruled on Friday that in his view the only thing the law allowed him to do was to nullify the November garage reterendum. He told the three parties represented before him that he did not think he had the authority to order a new election.

This Thursday, Borough Council will decide whether to start all over again. Borough attorney Edwin Schmierer will have in hand exactly the same bond ordinance as before, the $105,000 ordinance to finance design of a garage on Spring Street.

If Council introduces it at the 8 p.m. agenda session this Thursday, a public hearing will probably be held Tuesday, February 9. If it's adopted, after what is sure to be a steamy public hearing, opponents have 20 days to file suit.

Last time around, opponents did not take that option; instead, they gathered the requisite number of signatures on a petition to have the ordinance voted on in a referendum. They have ten days to tile another such petition – deadline February 19.

After that, there is no particular requirement for a referendum date; however, New Jersey law doesn't allow such a referendum in tandem with any election except the general elections in November, and nobody wants to wait that long. So, if the scenario follows these lines, there could be a special election, Borough-wide, in early March.

The special election will cost the Borough an estimated $7,000. Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this week that he hadn't given up the idea of "going after the county" to pick up the bill, because it was a detective county voting machine that caused the problem, but he pointed out that the County Election Commission is a state agency, even though it is funded by the county.

"Time is of the essence," he declared, "if we want to push the project.

"It's very frustrating," the mayor added "We did everything we were supposed to, and because somebody didn't check a voting machine – somebody at the county level — we've got to pay $7,000. And if the project goes down the tubes, it's even more serious."

A defective voting machine in District Six, recorded 54 "no" votes on election night and only one "yes" vote. The machine was found to have a rusted gear in the "yes" column. The pro-garage group has about 100 affidavits from voters who declare that they voted "yes." That tally would mean the pro-garage group had won.

Before Judge Lenox on Friday were attorney Edwin Schmierer, representing the Borough, which had sent a letter asking tor a quick resolution so that tunding would not be lost; James Britt, representing Princeton Community Housing, Inc.,

State EDA Defers Collins' Request for Loan Approval for Garage

Not quite enough "yes" votes – although not everybody voted "no" – so Collins was not granted loan approval last week by New Jersey's Economic Development Authority for the $8 million Chambers Street garage.

But it's more like a deterral, explained EDA executive director James Hughes, and Collins may return it the firm wishes. James Harvie, vice-president ot Collins, says that Palmer Square Associates Limited Partnership – the formal applicant – will indeed return, perhaps tor the next EDA meeting February 16, but "we want to make sure any deficiencies in our case can be remedied."

Details ot garage design were the chief concern, Mr. Hughes reported. He said he suspected that one member who voted "no" might have confused the Collins garage with the controversial Spring Street garage that was on the November ballot in the Borough, although he pointed out that it was quite differenf. Collins' lawyer, Thomas C. Jamieson, also explained the difference to EDA directors.

On the day of the vote, the Authority barely had a quorum: six of the nine members were present, and there were some abstentions in the vote.

Mr. Harvie speculated that the EDA directors might not have been given enough information by staff. Princeton, he commented, is a "non-targeted" area tor EDA. Since the garage project is coupled with a private development, it may not seem like the kind of thing EDA approves.

"I don't think the directors were aware that the mayor of the Borough and the president of the Chamber ot Commerce had both written to the Governor explaining the need for the project, and the need for public financing," Mr. Harvie said. "Both former Governor Byrne and Governor Kean are aware ot this project, and are not opposed to it."

Palmer Square Associates Limited Partnership is not asking the EDA tor money – that is not the procedure. The firm itself must tind an institution willing to provide the money.

Procedures call for preliminary approval by the EDA, stating that the applicant is qualitied. Then the EDA will ask exactly how much money the applicant wants. Mr. Harvie has not yet asked for a specific amount.

The EDA then authorizes a tax-exempt bond issue which is purchased by the buyer Collins has found. It could be a bank, insurance company, individual. Collins and the institution negotiate the terms – "although we look over their shoulder," Mr. Hughes adds.

Collins qualities because the Internal Revenue Service code says the garage is a "public tacility." The tax-exempt issue will mean a lower interest, usually 70 percenf of the prime rate, according to Mr. Hughes.

The Economic Development Authority has five ex officio members; representing the Departments of Commerce, Environmental Protection, Community Affairs and Labor, plus the state treasurer. There are tour public members, appointed by the governor tor three-year terms.

whose 89-unit apartment house for the elderly hinges on construction of the garage, and Robert Stockton, for Dollars and Sense, the group opposing the garage.

John Miller, head of Dollars and Sense, said this week that he would like to "encourage some form of compromise, with each side giving in a little, to provide decent housing for the truly needy elderly."

He added, "If PCH could give a guarantee that available space would be given to the truly needy first, that would be great, although we'd hope they would seek another site."

Harriet Bryan, president of PCH, suggested that a "compromiae," involving another site that the proposed library parking lot, would actually be a victory for Dollars and Sense.

In an affidavit presented to Judge Lenox, Mr. Miller declared that John Niesz, Mercer County Director of HUD, aaid PCH could apply for approval of an alternative site without loaing their reservation of funding.

"Absolutely impossibie," Mrs. Bryan stated.

"Our consultant, Martin McCarthy of the Urban Concern, Inc., has told us that location on this site was of most critical importance in the 1980 competition for HUD funds.

"If that site were changed," she continued, "projects that were rejected, could justifiably bring a challenge. Also PCH does not have control over any other aite. We do not know of any other that is availahle, in Borough or Township."

"Misrepresentation." The affidavit signed by Mr. Miller, aiso states that Mr. Niesz said HUD money has been reserved for the project, "despite that fact that PCH'a final application had neither been completed nor filed."

"It is mis-representation to say our application ia 'incomplete,' " Mra. Bryan declared. "Our original application is complete and we obtained fund reservation. Our application for conditional ioan commitment has all been presented on time, but HUD has not yet acted. The architects cannot go ahead until we receive that conditional ioan commitment."

Regarding the cost of the new referendum, Mr. Miller said "I would assume the Borough would go to the county first, to try and obtain the money. It is unfortunate that an irregularity in the election forced Council to make an expenditure."

Mr. Miller said that the Dollars and Sense steering committee has not met since Judge Lenox' ruling, and has therefore not decided what to do.

"The checking we've done among voters," Mr. Miller said, "gives us every reason to welcome a new general election. We still feel there is a tremendous amount of misinformation in the minds of people who voted for the garage."

Mrs. Bryan, in commenting on the prospect of doing the whole thing all over again, aaid, "If it weren't for one little bit of rust on one little pin in one voting machine, we'd be going ahead with housing by now. We had hoped, by going to the courts, we might have settled this more expeditiously, but this has proved impossible. We regret that it la necessary, but we feel this is the only way to get the true result of the election recorded."

Rape Crisis Workshop Scheduled for February May Result in County-Wide Counselling Center

A Rape Crisis Counselling Workshop, organized to raise the community's level of awareness and perhaps to serve as the starter for a county-wide Rape Counselling Center, will be held on two week-ends in February. The location will not be publicly announced. Dates are Friday, Saturday and Sunday, February 19, 20 and 21 and the same days the following week-end.

The Workshop is being organized by a woman affiliated with Princeton University — she wants to be known only as "Judy" — under the auspices of Mercer County's Ad Hoc Rape Counselling Task Force, directed by Ann M. Miner, the county's Mental Health Administrator.

The opening event will be a talk by Det. Barbara Wallace of the Essex County Sheriff's office, on "Prevention and Awareness." She will speak at 8:30 p.m. Friday, February 19.

On Saturday morning at 10, Beverly Harris, a self-defense instructor at Princeton University, will hold a workshop in self-defense. At 2 p.m. psychologist Ann Hirschman will discuss the psychological and medical aspects of rape.

Sunday at 2, Ann Hunton, a psychologist and trained rape crisis counsellor, will also discuss the psychological side of rape.

The following week-end, there will be a film at 8:30 p.m. Friday (February 26) shown by a speaker from Womenspace. The film will be "Behind Closed Doors: Battered Women."

Karen Thompson, Princeton attorney, will speak Saturday morning at 10. Sunday afternoon, there will be a speaker from "Contact," the crisis hot-line. Esther Fausti, an investigator from the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office and a member of the county's Rape Task Force, is also scheduled to speak, but the date is not yet known.

Registration — a tax-deductible $5 for each session — should be made by mail to Rape Crisis Counselling Workshop, care of Mathematics Department, Fine Hall, Princeton University, 08544. Checks should be made out to NOW Rape Counselling.

With the check, the registrants are asked to include name, address, telephone, age, gender, occupation and reason for taking the seminar. A stamped, self-addressed envelope must be included. The workshop's organizers will send to the registrant the complete workshop schedule, together with the times and places and speakers.

Deadline for registration is Wednesday, February 10. Child care will be provided, and volunteers are needed for this service.

Men's Issue, Too. "I don't see rape as a women's issue," Judy says, and she cites the possible homosexual rape of a man. "For me, the definition of 'rape' is the use of a sexual act for power. It's a 'people' issue, not solely a women's issue.

She envisions a Center where a trained volunteer would answer a crisis phone, urge the rape victim to go to a hospital emergency room, advise the victim about such important matters as not washing or changing clothing. Then, a volunteer would go to the hospital and provide immediate counselling, remaining until the person is discharged.

At present, police may call the Mercer County Prosecutor's Office is cases of rape. A woman from the office goes to one of the hospitals in the county — and the Medical Center at Princeton is one — where rape victims are cared for, and where there is the equipment for analysis of scrapings under fingernails, hair, blood samples and so on (Borough Police Chief Michael Carnevale says this has proved "an excellent approach").

"I've had tremendous support already from people in Princeton," Judy reports. "A lawyer, a member of the clergy, a psychiatrist — all telephoned to ask what they could do to help."

She emphasized that no center will be started unless there is "financial and emotional support."

Additional information may be obtained by calling 734-0962 and asking for Judy.

ANGELS HERE?

New To Us, Say Police Chiefs. Reports of a request from persons in the Princeton area to form a Guardian Angels group here that appeared in a Trenton newspaper drew blank responses this week from both Princeton police chiefs.

"The first I heard about it is what I read in the paper," said Township Chief Frederick Porter. "No one's been here to see me about it."

He added that he couldn't comment on it because he knew nothing about it. Asked if he would be opposed to such a group, Chief Porter replied, "I don't think our crime statistics warrant it." He said that figures he will release soon will show that crime in the Township in 1981 is less than the previous year. "What is good for some municipalities is not necessarily good for others because of geographic layout," he said.

Curtis Sliwa, founder and leader of the Guardian Angels, was quoted in the article as saying that 54 persons between 18 and 22 from the Princeton area had expressed an interest in patrolling the Borough and Township, "Angel-style."

Sliwa said that interest had been relayed to him through the Princeton Crime Watch Association, a citizens' group that, allegedly, had been formed with the help and support of the Borough and Township police departments.

"I can't speak for the Township police," commented Borough Chief Michael Carnevale, "but I know of no such organization. I know that Borough police did not have any part in helping organize any such citizens' group."

"The first indication I had," he said, "is when I received a phone call from a Trenton Times reporter Saturday night."

Would he be opposed to a Guardian Angels group in Princeton? "No comment," replied Chief Carnevale. "I think any comment would be premature. It would be more appropriate when Mayor and Council are made aware of any official request."

Chief Carnevale was quoted in the article as saying, "I think there are a lot of other communities that are in dire need of whatever kind of help they can get to alleviate violent crime in the street."

Saturday's Tropical 43° Temperature Saves Princeton from 8 Inches of Snow

Saturday was about as dirty as a day can be: grey slosh, uninspired snow, freezing rain, real rain, brown puddles, fog...

But it produced 1.06 inches of liquid to bring the January total, so far, to a hearty 5.32 inches. "Good for the reservoirs," remarked Science Associates Dan Mazzarella, sipping a long drink of water.

Saturday's snow, which began around 3 a.m., stopped about 8, having produced two inches. From then on — in case you were unobservant — it rained eight-tenths of an inch. Curbs were awash, softened ice slipped from rooftops, pedestrians were as helpless as drivers.

But it was curious, as weatherman David Ludlum discovered. Although Princeton had a halmy 16 degrees at sunrise and a smashing tropical 43 degrees later on, pockets of freezing cold locked in such nearhy places —"nearby", in meteorological terms — as Washington, Baltimore, Lancaster, Reading.

"In this area, the warm air just scooped out the cold air," Mr. Ludlum remarked, playing happily with the weather computer that tells him all these things. "Otherwise, we'd have had eight inches of snow on Saturday morning."

So be grateful for the sloshy day.

By nightfall, of course, the cold had hegun to lock in Princeton, as well.

This week, Mr. Ludlum and Mr. Mazzarella expect it to he warm through Thursday, with a week-end that's a "bit cooler."

Don't worry about the minus 56 in the Yukon, Mr. Ludlum soothes. It's in a low-pressure area and will probably stay there for quite a time.

NEW PROPOSAL AIRED

Between Squad, Municipalities. A new proposal has been put forward as a means of resolving the differences between the two municipalities and the First Aid and Rescue Squad over how the paid paramedic service will be funded.

The proposal was suggested by Borough Council member Barbara Hill at an informal meeting last Wednesday with representatives of the Council and Township Committee and Squad members.

Under the proposal there would be a financial advisory group composed of the administrators of both municipalities and representatives of the two governing bodies who would act as a liaison between the municipalities and the Squad. This group would also help the Squad set up an accounting procedure for capital outlays.

Up to now, the Squad has resisted municipal oversight of its income and outgo, claiming that they must retain autonomy to keep faith with their donors. The Squad has also lumped capital expenses in with operating expenses, paying for equipment as they got the funds rather than budgeting in advance in a depreciation account for capital outlays.

Ms. Hill further proposes that the two municipalities continue to fund the paramedic program on a rateables basis but that the Squad would dedicate to the municipalities any and all funds left over after operating expenses have been met and after a certain portion of the operating budget has been set aside for the replacement of equipment.

Ms. Hill feels that her proposal would give some relief to the tax payers and that it would give fiscal autonomy as well as fiscal responsibility to the Squad. "It requires hard work and good faith on both sides," she said.

The suggestions have yet to he drawn up in a formal proposal to be presented to each municipality and to the Squad membership.

SQUAD CALLS ROSE

During 1981. During 1981 the Princeton First Aid and Rescue Squad responded to a total of 1226 calls, a 10 percent increase over 1980 and an all-time high.

Some 1,070 of the calls were emergency dispatches, 96 were routine transportation calls, and 60 were miscellaneous calls such as standbys at large public gatherings and sporting events. Five hundered forty-six (44.5 percent) of the calls were in the Borough, 534 (43.6 percent) in the Township, and 146 (11 percent) out-of-town, usually mutual aid calls to surrounding communities.

One hundred ninety-two of the calls were handled as "advanced life support" calls, with telemetry radio contact being established with Princeton Hospitals' emergency room and, usually, an intravenous line established, and often medications given during or prior to transport to the emergency room. Seven people who were clinically dead on the arrival of the Squad were revived prior to arrival at the hospital. Four of them are alive and recovering or recovered at this time.

An indeterminate number of others owe their survival to the fact that dangerous heart irregularities, severe respiratory problems, chest pain, or shock were treated by the personnel of the Squad's Lifemobile mohile intensive care unit. Squad members responded promptly to untold other less extreme medical emergencies and comforted, assessed, and treated the patients prior to or during transport to the hospital.

The Squad's three ambulances, heavy rescue truck, and underwater recovery vehicle were driven a total of 12,586 miles. Members put in a total of 4781 hours on calls.

2 TEENAGERS CHARGED

With Burglary and Theft. Two Borough teenagers, 15 and 14, have been charged with burglary and theft by Township police, following an entry last week into a Quaker Road home.

The youths have since been released to their parents, pending further action by a juvenile court.

According to police, the home on Quaker was entered between 2 and 3 last Tuesday afternoon, after the intruders had broken a pane of glass in a kitchen door, reached in and unlocked it. Taken were an electric guitar valued at $300 and a 300-watt amplifier valued at $900.

The youths were apprehended the following afternoon on Princeton-Kingston Road near Dodds Lane by Ptl. David A. Funk, who observed them carrying the guitar and amp along the side of the roadway. Ptl. Funk had read about the theft the day before in the police docket, commented Juvenile Officer Jerry Offredo and recognized the stolen articles. "It was just good police work."

HITS PARKED CAR

Driver Is Charged. Richard S. Federico, 40, 293 Hamilton Avenue, has been charged with driving while under the influence of alcohol, after he struck a parked car on Valley Road. He was later released in $25 bail, pending his court appearance on March 2.

According to police, Federico's car struck the rear of a small foreign car parked near 175 Valley Road, pushing it 48 feet forward. He told Ptl. John Seeley Jr. that he did not know how the accident, which took place at midnight Thursday, had happened.

The parked car is owned by Randall B. Cloud of San Antonio, Tex. Both cars had to be towed from the scene.

$1800 IN JEWELRY TAKEN

From Lawrence Court Apartment. Miscellaneous men's jewelry valued at $1,800 was stolen between 1:30 Sunday afternoon and 10:30 the same night from the bedroom of a Lawrence Court apartment while the victim was away.

Police said that they believe a key was used to enter the apartment. The initial investigation by Sgt. Robert Heacock is being continued by Det. Frank Boccanfuso.

An assortment of jewelry, its value unknown, was stolen the previous day from a home on Greenway Terrace. Also taken, police said, were cash and credit cards.

Police said that entry was gained by climbing a garage roof and entering a bedroom window.

BOROUGH GETS RELIEF

$112,000 More "Cap." Increased parking-meter fees and higher liquor license fees in the Borough so impressed New Jersey's Department of Community Affairs that it has agreed to add $112,000 to the Borough's budget cap.

This leaves the municipality "only" $10,000 to $15,000 over the five percent increase allowed by the state for operating expenses. Mayor Robert W. Cawley said this week he did not know where Council would pare the budget to eliminate that overrun.

The Borough increased meter fees over the four-year period from 1978 through 1981, and in that time, picked up about $106,000 more in receipts. License fees for distribution and retail consumption of liquor were increased for another $5,800. Club liquor licenses have not been increased.

"We won't have to do the kind of budget surgery we had feared," Mayor commented, "but people are still going to be unhappy about cuts."

Although the Borough is happy about the additional allowed $112,000, it's a quirky kind of happiness: It means the municipality has more leeway to tax.

WHAT'S AN ARCADE?

Borough Defines. What is a "penny arcade?" They're against the law — the zoning ordinance, at any rate — in the Borough, but they aren't defined. This makes enforcement a shade tricky, so Borough Clerk Penelope Carter asked Council for a clarifying ordinance.

Council obliged, and introduced one. Public hearing will be held this Thursday at Council's 8 p.m. agenda session in Borough Hall.

The governing body is also expected to decide who gets the lease for the 102 Witherspoon Building. Contenders are the Arts Council of Princeton, the Art Association and Princeton Presbyterian Church.

The penny-arcade ordinance says you can have one Skill Amusement Machine if you have 500 square feet of floor space or less; after that, you may have one additional machine for every additional 500 square feet.

Council expects Mykonos, the food shop at 22 Witherspoon, to comment. Mykonos has six of these machines and would qualify for only two if the ordinance is passed.

TWO CARS COLLIDE

On Rosedale Road. Two cars collided at 12:46 Sunday morning on Rosedale Road when one spun out of control after crossing the Stony Brook bridge.

Police said that Ann P. McHugh, 39, 24 W. Delaware Avenue, Pennington, lost control on the icy surface while crossing the bridge. Her small foreign car spun into the opposite lane where it collided with another small car operated by Deborah P. Stovall, 37, 46 Elm Ridge Road, Pennington.

There were no charges by Sgt. John Hammond. Both cars had to be towed from the scene.

THEFT REPORT

Girls Hockey Gear Stolen. Hockey equipment valued at $350 was reported stolen Saturday morning from the girls' locker room at Baker Rink on the university campus.

Missing, police said, are two pair of hockey skates valued at $100 a pair; two left hockey skates valued at $50 each and two sets of shin guards worth $50. Also taken was a $240 AM-FM stereo cassette.

There were four more car battery thefts. Borough police report $50 batteries taken Saturday from the cars of Princeton residents parked in the Park Place and Tulane West lots and a third the same day, also worth $50, during a 20-minute period a Princeton resident was inside the Public Library. Her car had been parked in the Witherspoon Street lot adjacent to the library.

Also on Saturday, a Winant Road resident called Township police at 12:35 p.m. to report that her battery, valued at $60, was stolen from her car, while it was parked at the Princeton Shopping Center.

Like batteries, wallets were a popular target for thieves.

A Quaker Road resident called police to report the theft of her wallet containing $40, a check book and credit cards. She found it in front of her house at noon Saturday. Police report that there had been a party at the house the night before.

A Princeton High School student lost $17 when her wallet was taken from her locker in the girls' locker room between 5 and 7 p.m. last week, and a Hightstown resident lost $50 after her wallet was removed last week from her locked locker at the YWCA.

In another theft from the women's locker room at the Y, a Hightstown resident called police Monday to report that $10 had been taken from her wallet which had been left inside her locked locker. She added that she had been the victim of a similar theft the previous week at the Y. On that occasion she lost $30.

A navy blue officer's coat valued at $200 was removed last week from a chair in the Firestone Library on the university campus, while the owner, a student, was studying. Inside the pockets were a pair of gloves valued at $40.

A 10-speed bicycle valued at $295 was stolen last week from the grounds at Princeton High School. Police report that it had been locked.

CLOSE CALL IN BOSTON

For Chapel Dean. The dean of the Princeton University Chapel was one of 208 people aboard World Airways Flight 30 which slid off a runway at Boston's Logan International Airport Saturday and came to a stop in Boston harbor. The front end of the plane was sheared off in the incident in which at least 36 people were injured, none seriously.

Dean Frederick H. Borsch, who was on his way to deliver a sermon the next morning at Harvard University's Memorial Chapel, was not hurt. Nor were the two trustees, Julian H. Gibbs, president of Amherst College, and Winthrop A. Short, both of whom were returning home after attending meetings in Princeton.

Have You Stolen Any Street Signs? Return Them: "No Questions Asked"

Does it really make you feel grown-up to steal a street sign?

That's the question Township Engineer Walter Wheeler is asking Princeton's teens and young adults.

Last year, the Township spent $493.74 to replace street signs. Each sign required four to six hours of work by somebody on the public works crew. Lately, the Township has been setting some posts in concrete and welding the sign to its post. This is expensive. Mr. Wheeler would rather see the money used to keep ball fields in good repair or to buy sports equipment.

His chief concern is safety. If a sign is missing, an ambulance could waste precious minutes trying to find the right house. If a traffic sign is missing, a tragic accident could result.

Police have begun watching for vandals, or for anybody trying to remove a sign. If you have a sign in your bedroom or den, you're invited to return it to the Township, and there will be "no questions asked."

Signs are missing at these locations: Battle Road and Springdale; Mountain Avenue and Great Road; Winfield and Great Road; Pheasant Hill; Thanet Road; Grover and Terhune; Snowden Lane and Van Dyke; Baker Court; Poe Road; John and Leigh; Ober; Drakes Corner.

sermon under his life jacket, Dean Borsch helped some people out before he walked out on the wing himself, slid down the chute and waded five or six yards to the runway. The runway was so icy, he says, that standing on it, while waiting for a bus to the terminal, was difficult.

The cause of the accident has been attributed by several witnesses to the icy conditions on the runway. But Dean Borsch says he thinks that the aft engine, which kept running even after the plane had landed in the water, might have contributed to the problem.

"I have a suspicion that when the experts go to check it, they'll find the trouble was that the pilot couldn't turn off or reverse the thrust of that engine," he said.

Saturday's experience, coming close on the heels of the January 13 crash of an Air Florida jet that killed 78 people in Washington, D.C., was unnerving, but did not stop him from boarding another plane Sunday to fly home. He brought along the life jacket he wore to shore in Saturday's incident.

TWO WINDOWS BROKEN

Damage Is $1,600. Two Thermopane windows in the basement of Spelman Hall on the university campus, were broken last week by someone who had pushed a large soda vending machine into them. Police report that the windows, measuring 68 by 101 inches, are valued at $1,600.

Police said that a student was in the laundry room when she heard a tremendous crash around 8 in the evening. She ran upstairs. When she returned, she noticed the vandalism. Ptl. Mark Stillitano and Ptl. Chris Boutote investigated.

A second-floor dormitory window at 48 University Place was broken shortly before 10 Saturday evening by someone who threw a snowball through it.

An occupant of the room told police that she was painting near the window when she saw two high-school-age youths, one wearing a blue parka, run from the scene.

In another act of mischief reported by police, the front tire of a locked bicycle was cut when someone on Monday moved the bike from one side of Princeton High School to the other. The tire is valued at $13.

News Of The THEATRES

CRAZIES!

The Karamazovs. "The Flying Karamazov Brothers" are not brothers, not named Karamazov and not airborne. Describing themselves as "four very disciplined crazies," they will fill — probably a distinct understatement — the stage of Alexander Hall on February 12 with "flying objects, the best jokes from Russian literature"— there's a full basket right there — "and a lot of old-fashioned brotherly love."

Motto (they say): "Juglito, ergo sum I juggle, therefore I am." They also tell jokes and indulge in what they describe as "cheap theatrics." The antics of Dmitri, Ivan, Fyodor and Smerdyakov (Paul David, Howard Jay Patterson, Timothy Daniel and Sam Williams) gained them a 1980 Obie award for "Best Ensemble Performance." They've been on NBC-TV and have been praised by The Village Voice and People Magazine.

Juggling, incidentally, includes everything from objects provided by the audience to flaming torches and meat cleavers. Alexander Hall will never be the same.

It all starts at 8 p.m. Tickets are available at the McCarter Theatre box-office, 921-8700, Monday through Saturday, noon to 6, or by mail at $6 per ticket.

FOR THE DEAF

Two Plays. A double feature, consisting of a pair of contrasts: a version of the ancient Sumerian epic, "Gilgamesh," and a fun-poking Japanese western, "The Ghost of Chastity Past," will be given next Tuesday at McCarter starting at 8 p.m.

Both plays, presented by the National Theatre of the Deaf, will be "signed" for the hard-of-hearing, although McCarter points out that performances are designed for both deaf and "hearing" audiences.

Choirs of First Baptist Church Rehearsing For Their Production of 'God's Trombones'

CHOIR MEMBERS of First Baptist Church in rehearsal for "God's Trombones," a dramatization of seven sermons in verse by James Weldon Johnson. The choir plays the dual role of congregation and chorus, singing familiar Negro spirituals for emphasis and commentary. Performances are on Saturday, February 6, at 8, and Sunday, February 7, at 4.

"Come and go with me to my father's house; There'll be no crying there."

Clapping and singing with full-throated fervor, the combined choirs of the First Baptist Church make their way to the state of the Middle School where they are rehearsing James Weldon Johnson's "God's Trombones." The choirs will present this work for the public on Saturday, February 6, at 8 and again on Sunday, February 7, at 4 in the John Witherspoon School auditorium.

"Push, Choir, Push," admonishes the Rev. Silas Townsend, music director, while director Cecilia Drewry adds her own rich voice and rhythmic claps to the swelling sound. Settling themselves in chairs at each side of the stage, as if in church, the men and women of the choir become the congregation as well as a chorus, commenting with familiar spirituals on the seven sermons in verse that make up "God's Trombones."

In his foreward to this work, written in 1927, James Weldon Johnson tells of the Black folk sermons that were passed from preacher to preacher and locality to locality in his boyhood. The preacher who prompted the first poem for the book he describes thus: "He strode the pulpit up and down in what was actually a very rhythmic dance, and he brought into play the full gamut of his wonderful voice, a voice, not of an organ or a trumpet, but rather of a trombone, the instrument possessing above all others the power to express the wide and varied range of emotions encompassed by the human voice — and with greater amplitude."

For Black History Month. "God's Trombones" has been frequently dramatized, recorded and anthologized. The First Baptist choir gave a reading of it to their own members several years ago, followed by presentations at Princeton Seminary and at Shiloh Baptist Church in Trenton. It was choir member Maxine Matthis who originated the idea that the choir should present a full blown production to the public to initiate Black History Month this February.

In addition to entertainment, she hopes that putting on "God's Trombones" for the community will increase awareness of the black heritage. "Some of our youth don't even know that we have writers like James Weldon Johnson," she points out. Another part of her plan was that proceeds from the sale of tickets, which are $5, should go to area scholarship funds, such as the William T. Parker Fund maintained by First Baptist.

"God's Trombones" isn't a play, but it is all drama, from the re-telling of Moses' struggle with Pharaoh to "let my people go," spoken with a flair by Middle School language teacher Ray Hunt, to a commentary on the events at Calvary movingly expressed by Pat Clark, a veteran of PJ&B productions.

It isn't a musical, but it is full of the rhythm of Johnson's poetry, the singing, clapping and "Yes, Lord!" commentary of the Choir, and two dances by Rose Marie Lilly, a newcomer to the area.

Fire and Brimstone. Several of the sermons come down heavily on sin, but the Creation is exalted in the most joyful language imaginable, given full expression by Dr. Drewry. The director of this production is a member of the English Department at Princeton University and assistant dean of the college who has given one-woman poetry, prose and drama readings here and abroad.

There is pathos in the funeral sermon, "Weep not, weep not, she is not dead; she is resting in the bosom of Jesus," delivered by John Counts. Mr. Counts is a veteran teacher in the Princeton School system, and a regular performer with PJ&B and the Princeton Opera

Y Symphony Plays Rarely Heard Compositions To Receptive Audience at McCarter Theatre

The fourth event in Music-at-McCarter's 1981-82 season featured the Y Chamber Symphony, which played to a full house at McCarter Theatre on Monday evening. Under the musical direction of Gerald Schwarz, this orchestra is based in what may seem an unlikely location — the 92nd Street YMHA in New York City.

Although a relatively recent arrival on the concert scene, it has established itself during the past five years as one of the eminent ensembles of its kind. The reasons for the ensemble's success are quite evident: the performers exhibit the highest degree of professionalism and musicianship, which under Schwarz's leadership is focussed and cultivated to produce music of the highest calibre.

Monday evening's program was drawn from works which are rarely heard: Walter Piston's "Sinfonietta," Mendelssohn's First Piano Concerto in G minor, and Dvorak's "Czech Suite," Op. 39. Joseph Kalichstein was the piano soloist in the concerto.

The concert opened with the Piston Sinfonietta, a work which displays Piston's mature compositional style. With its sharp, angular rhythms and complex counterpoint, the Sinfonietta was rendered with careful attention to the details of the scoring. The balance between the strings and the winds was impeccable, making a first hearing of this work very understandable.

MUSIC In Princeton

The long, lyric lines of the second movement were superbly phrased by strings, oboe and flute, as they intertwined and exchanged prominence throughout. One felt very comfortable listening to this sure-footed ensemble in a work such as this. Its security in the most jagged rhythms had a way of drawing one into the contrapuntal maze which Piston set up for the attentive listener, making it a sheerly pleasurable experience.

For the Mendelssohn concerto pianist Joseph Kalichstein joined forces with the orchestra. Kalichstein has won critical acclaim throughout the world, and this performance was indicative of his immense talent and sensitivity as a musician. The concerto's fortissimo octave passages were performed precisely, if somewhat blurred by the pedalling.

He had a relaxed but commanding approach to the pianistic difficulties of the work, and his singing, lyric tone lent great beauty to the middle movement. Kalichstein had absolute freedom and control in the expressive rubato passages, and yet he was always in total accordance with the orchestra in regard to tempo during tutti sections.

The piano concerto was well suited to the forces of this orchestra. The strings, which dominated the scoring, were rich and colorful, and their ensemble was perfect, down to the sharpest pizzicato. The only regretable aspect of this performance was that the tutti orchestra tended to overshadow the piano during the virtuosic passages of rippling sixteeth notes. Kalichstein could hardly have been any more forceful in his tone during these parts, and Schwarz could well have dynamically shaded the orchestra accordingly.

The Pastoral Mood. The pastoral mood of the closing work of the concert, Dvorak's Czech Suite, was captured during the first bars of this work. The strings and oboes created a feeling of gentle breezes and crystal-clear brooks as they spun out a melody which one might suppose could have been a peasant's fiddle tune. This character was maintained by Schwarz throughout the work. Contrasts, though not always self-evident, were explicit but controlled.

The fourth movement was of particular note thanks to the luscious sound of the flute and English Horn. Their alternating duet, which formed the core of this movement, was gorgeously phrased and beautifully balanced. From beginning to end, the rhythmic turns and inventive harmonies of this work were brought to full bloom in a dynamic and interesting performance.

In his tenure as musical director of this brilliant ensemble, Schwarz has developed a style which is very pleasing as well as musically sound. It is hoped that in the next few years the Y Chamber Symphony will continue to expand its concert season to bring more of these little-known master works to its eager and appreciative audiences.

FLUTE AND VIOLIN

At Westminster. Alexandre Djokic, violinist, will give a recital for violin and piano on Saturday at 7 in Bristol Chapel, and Janice Holms, flutist, will play a program of mostly French music in Williamson Hall on Sunday at 3, on the campus of Westminster Choir College. Both artists are members of the Conservatory Division of the College and invite the public to attend.

Mr. Djokic's program will include sonatas for violin by Tartini and Cesar Franck. He will be accompanied by Peter Lauffer — also of the Conservatory faculty. Mr. Djokic comes from Trenton. He was concertmaster and assistant principal of several orchestras in the Chicago area where he lived and worked for several years.

Miss Holms is a resident of Highland Park and has performed extensively in the New York-New Jersey area. Her teachers have included George Hambrecht, James Scott, Marcel Moyse and William Bennett.

Her program will include Sonata No. 2 by Michel Blavet, "Fantasie sur le Freyschutz" of Paul Taffanel; "Fourteen Pieces" by Charles Koechlin;" "Suite" by Eugene Goossens. In the last piece she will be joined by Ann Bolen, violinist, a pupil of Ko Harada of the Tokyo quartet. Ms. Bolen is a current member of the New york City Opera Orchestra and the New Jersey Symphony.

Ms. Holms will be accompanied at the piano by Eric Repanshek.

Association who also tells stories to children at the Public Library.

Each of these performers has had to commit to memory one whole sermon in poetry and give it life as a stage presentation. But there is one young man who turned up in response to the casting call in September and whose voice and bearing and stage presence clearly indicated — and enabled — him for two of the most demanding sermons in verse.

He is Stanley Stroman, a native of Trenton who attended Westminster Choir College and the Lee Strasburg acting classes in New York City. Mr. Stroman is currently teaching music at the Princeton School for Exceptional Children at the Unitarian Church where he is a member of the fine arts team working with emotionally disturbed youngsters. His talents seem designed for the theatre, however.

Virtuoso. Stepping to a pulpit on stage, he tells the congregation, "What we're going to talk about this evening, is how sin got into the world." He proceeds to give a lively recitation of the Fall according to James Weldon Johnson — who points the finger straight at Eve — and moves quickly on to the story of the Flood. Mr. Stroman winds up the show with a thundering declamation of The Judgement Day, in which he gets to use his fine baritone voice as a soloist with the choir in the finale, "Great Gittin' Up Mornin'."

Other performers are Floyd Phox, another PJ&B veteran, and the Rev. Mr. Townsend, who has been the director of music at First Baptist for 10 years as well as assistant pastor. Sadie Toney gives the preliminary prayer, "Listen, Lord," and sings a solo, Dorothy Alexander is the piano accompanist, and Darius Young is the drummer.

For information on tickets, call Jacqueline Swain, 924-2541 evenings.

THREE IN ONE

Players, In One-Acters. Three one-act plays will be given in early February by Princeton Community Players, and the casts for all three were announced this week. Opening night will be Saturday, February 6, with performances Sunday, February 7, and again February 12, 13 and 14 and 19, 20 and 21, all at the Players' 171 Broadmead theatre.

In "A Little Something for the Ducks," by June Lenox Toddie, director Leslie McAneny will have June Cunnerton and Herbert McAneny. Edward Albee's "The Zoo Story," directed by Nick Hilton, will be performed by Mike Spitz and Jim Stevenson. William Saroyan's "Hello, Out There," will feature Diana Glasberg and Brian Binns. Rip Pellaton is the director. Marty Katz is producer for all three.

MUSICAL!

At Stuart Country Day. "Once Upon a Mattress," the musical version of the old fairy tale about the princess and the pea, is now in final rehearsal at Stuart Country Day School. It will be presented this Thursday through Sunday at 8 p.m. at the school's theatre. A 2:30 Sunday matinee has also been scheduled.

Queen Aggravane will be played by Li Van Horn and Princess Winifred by Emilie White. Doug Ryan, who attends Montgomery High School, will play Prince Dauntless.

Others in the cast are Lynn Duffy, Catherine Norton, Nancy Bernard, Koren Thanner, Robin Faulkner, Cindy Harrison, Daniel Winer of Montgomery High School, and Princeton actor Peter Kauzman. Lawrenceville students Larry Ostema, Jim Gildiesin and Sam Nicholas are also in the production.

Stuart drama teacher Susan Tapper is directing, and her colleague, Robin DeKlein is musical director. Shirley Schaffener is in charge of costumes.

BACK TO KRESGE

For Movies. It's another one from Australia, the first film after the holidays for Movies-from-McCarter in Kresge Auditorium, Washington Road.

"The Chant of Jimmie Blacksmith" describes the brutal collision between two cultures: the white world and that of the Australian aborigine.

Although McCarter describes Fred Schepisi's film as "free of hysteria or melodrama," the theatre nevertheless warns that there are scenes of violence so bloody that the squeamish are warned to stay home.

"The Chant of Jimmie Blacksmith" will be screened four times: at 7:30 and 9:30 p.m. next Tuesday and Wednesday. Admission is $2.75 at the door.

CAST ON STAGE!

For G. & S. "If you want to know who we are....."

The cast has been announced for McCarter's P.J. & B. production of Gilbert and Sullivan's joyous classic, "The Mikado."

It will be given five performances starting with an opening night on Thursday, February 11 and continuing that Friday and Saturday, all at 8 p.m. Matinees will be Saturday, February 13 and Sunday, February 14 at 2:30 each day.

Now, about that cast.

Pooh-Bah, the Lord High Whatever, will be Reid White, who has appeared in more than half a dozen P.J. & B. musicals, including last year's "Kiss Me Kate."

Yum-Yum will be Derry Light, whom audiences will remember as Liza in "My Fair Lady." She's been in five P.J. & B. shows, all told.

Opposite her, as Ko-Ko, will be Jack Friedel, who has been on stage in five of these musicals.

Singing along with all those veterans will be Priscilla Orr, as Peep-Bo. This will be her first appearance, although she was in the orchestra last year. Teresa Nevola, playing Pitti-Sing, is also making her debut with P.J. & B.

Other cast members are Dorothy Edwards as Katisha, Mark A. Kramer as Pish-Tush, Jack Lanning as The Mikado and Brent Monahan as the young hero, Nanki-Poo.

All the principals have appeared frequently with such groups as the Princeton University Opera, Pennington Players and Triangle Club. Many have also performed professionally.

This year's production includes children in its chorus and for some families, "The Mikado" is a family affair, with parents and children among the Little Maids from School and the Gentlemen of Japan.

ACTOR, DANCER DUE

At Trenton State. Geoffrey Holder, the stage and film actor - dancer - director - artist, will appear in Kendall Hall at Trenton State College next Monday at 8, marking the start of "Black History Month" celebrations at the college. "The Gospel Extravaganza," a tradition at Trenton State, will follow on Thursday, February 4.

Mr. Holder, who is currently appearing in the film version of "Annie," is not only famous as an actor and dancer but also as a self-styled impressionistic painter and the recipient of a Guggenheim Fellowship for painting.

Tickets are $1 general admission and 50 cents for Trenton State students with ID. For further information, call the College Union Board at 771-2467.

Missing the Point?
To the Editor of Town Topics:

I'm against the trashing of Palmer Square too, but aren't we missing the point?

Skirm's, Brophy's, and the Music Center, have occupied their present locations a collective total of some 102 years. They have stayed because they have been able to supply a demand there at a profit. I thought that was what good business was all about.

Who, then, is to say that other businesses should replace them for the sake of some ill-defined public "good"? If these are sound supply-side economics, then the demand-siders at Collins Development can tell Princeton consumers what to consume, and goldfish can fly.

E. PARKER HAYDEN, JR.
245 Nassau Street

In Praise of Kopp's.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

In the summer of 1968 I rode my bicycle to Canada with another Princeton High School sophomore, Ken Buckland. My bicycle came from Kopp's Cycle. It was a bright purple Schwinn "Varsity." It cost $80. Together with the bicycle came a "30 Day Check-Up."

That free coupon to return to 14 John St. became first a season pass, then a lifetime subscription to the world of bicycling. I was too young to think that I could become friends with the store owner, Fred Kuhn or with his English first mate, Dick Swann, so I admired them from a distance. But admiration is often the start of friendship.

For many people, their first visit to Kopp's is an ever-memorable one. It was like entering another world, stepping into the old shop where bikes were repaired right behind the cash register, so that you felt as if you were getting an intimate view. There was hardly enough room for customers to stand in the small space between the repair area and the bicycle display room. The physical set-up assured that the customer would get individual attention.

You were not always "right" when it came to bicycle matters, but you were an individual. I remember vividly the day that I returned from Canada and was in Kopp's boasting about bicycling 100 miles a day on ten-speed. Dick Swann looked up from fixing a bike and casually said, "Fred, will you listen to this boy, or shall I tell him how we used to do 200 miles a day on our old one speeds..." And I listened to part of the "Oral History of Bicycling."

There are not many stores that offer a philosophy or world-view with their product. But a bicycle shop in the "automobile age" is compelled to be different. The difference at Kopp's is that it has hardly changed since it began in 1891. It is straight out of "The Old World." I learned this when I studied in France for a summer. In the small cities of Tours and of Chartres I discovered bike shops that looked like French translations of Kopp's. Small shops, run by a single family, where devotion to the craft of bicycle repair, and to the sport of bicycle racing, took precedence over commercial profit.

I recall how anxious one bicycle riding professor became when faced with the summer holiday closing of his favorite bike shop. That is the only thing which is not old-worldly about Kopp's. They do not, like their European counterparts, close for 2 hours during lunch, nor do they close for 4 weeks during the summer.

I would like to salute the faithfulness of the Fred and Jean Kuhn family who have operated Kopp's Cycle at 14 John Street since 1952. My father would have said, "They've been in Princeton through the presidencies of Dodds, Goheen and Bowen."

All but one of Fred and Jean Kuhn's six children have worked in Kopp's Cycle at one point or another in their lives. Their youngest two children, Marie and Charlie, are now carrying on the tradition, and will probably be the ones to carry on their parents' business.

In 1991 Kopp's Cycle will celebrate is centennial in Princeton. On Feb. 1st 1982, Kopp's will move into a new location in 43 Witherspoon St. We can all look forward to enjoying their particular brand of old fashioned shopkeeping in a new setting.

"....like a buildozer."
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following is the text of a letter I have written to the owners of Palmer Square.

It was with dismay that I read about the termination of leases of the three stores in Palmer Square near the corner of Nassau Street. Each of these stores serves specific and special service to this community.

I would hope that you realize that this area is fortunate to have retained up to now the ambiance of the small town, and yet to have provided the individualized services of quality products. This is not New York, Philadelphia, Baltimore or Boston.

Many of the permanent residents of this area chose it for precisely its quality and uniqueness and for the town of Princeton itself. It is no wonder that it is called an oasis surrounded by Trenton and New Brunswick.

The Princeton Music Center is the only shop of its kind anywhere around where you can discuss music and get advice on the selection of records in a quiet friendly atmosphere. Brophy is a long time quality business in the town and Skirm's is one of the few shops where one can get a full line of cigars, pipes and accessories.

For goodness sake, do not come into this town like a buildozer without any consideration for tenants as well as their patrons and their needs and desires.

Snow Decision "Wise."
To the Editor of Town Topics:

We had a snowfall of several inches on December 16, on January 13, and on January 15, and the following day the sidewalk snow plow cleared the sidewalks in Princeton Township. This plowing of the sidewalk snow is a boon to the children going to and from school, to the pedestrians making their way to a destination, and to the abutting home-owners who have a clear passage in front of their houses.

Princeton Township made a wise decision 14 years ago when it purchased the sidewalk snow plow and arranged to clear all of the sidewalks after substantial snowfalls. Prior to that, each abutting property owner was responsible for clearing the sidewalk in front of his property. For some, this was not a difficult chore, for others it was quite a problem. Persons with certain disabilities should not attempt to remove the snow, but trying to find young willing workers was virtually impossible.

The situation was especially onerous — some sidewalks were cleared and others were untouched. Some persons could clear walks right after the snow stopped, others waited until the 48-hour deadline, and still others spent time trying to find workers who would clear the walk for a fee. All of these problems were relieved when the snow plow came along and cleared block after block of sidewalk.

The school children (or at least their parents), the pedestrians, and the home-owners have reaped the benefits of this policy in Princeton Township. Hopefully this system of municipally-controlled sidewalk snow removal will be continued.

CRIME WATCH DECALS MADE AVAILABLE BY NASSAU S & L: Joseph Bandura (left), executive vice-president of Nassau Savings & Loan Association, presents 3,000 crime watch decals to Det. Jerry Offredo, the Township's crime prevention officer. Any neighborhood organization in the Township interested in setting up a crime watch should call Det. Offredo at 921-2100. He will describe start-up procedures, discuss home security and distribute the decals which are attached to the window or door of participating homes. Det. Offredo reported that there are five active crime watch areas in the Township and more that operate in an informal way.

In his new position, Mr. Schreyer will supervise the operations, and be responsible for the profitability of Merrill Lynch, Pierce, Fenner & Smith, including its two primary units, Individual Services Group and Merrill Lynch White Weld Markets Group. Other subsidiaries over which he will have jurisdiction include Merrill Lynch International, Merrill Lynch Royal Securities (in Canada), Merrill Lynch Asset Management, and Merrill Lynch Commodities.

The announcement was made by Roger E. Birk, chairman and chief executive officer of the holding company, who said he would concentrate primarily on the strategic direction that Merrill Lynch is taking and leave the day-to-day operations of the securities and commodities of the company to Mr. Schreyer.

John C. Belmont, 306 S. Main Street, Pennington, and Anne Higgins, 2 Tyburn Lane, Hopewell, each paid $20 for red light violations.

Others: Shelley Stortz, 10 Blue Spruce Drive, Pennington, $15, overdue inspection; Catherine Crespo, 2371 Princeton Pike, Lawrenceville, $15, no license or registration in possession; and Henry H. Tallmadge, 26 Mulberry Row, $20, unregistered vehicle.

In Borough criminal court last week, Edwin Berrios, 131 Laurel Avenue, Kingston, was fined $35 and received a 30-day suspended sentence to the Mercer County Workhouse for harrassment.

George McGowan, 240 John Street, was fined $30 and ordered to make restitution for malicious damage to property. For allowing his dog to run loose in violation of a Borough ordinance, Dr. William J. Peter, 53 Battle Road, was fined $15.

Health Screenings Set

The Health Department will sponsor a screening session for colorectal cancer, diabetes and blood pressure on Wednesday, February 3, from 2-3 in the lower level of Borough Hall, Monument Drive.

Those who wish to participate may do so on a walk-in basis; appointments are not necessary. However, those who plan to take the diabetes test are asked to eat a full meal, preferably with dessert, 1½ hours before the test to insure greater accuracy in the test reading.

NEW PRESIDENT NAMED

For Library Board. The board of trustees of the Public Library has elected Janice Stonaker, president; Denis Woodfield, vice president and chairman of the finance committee; Peter Hodge, treasurer.

The board also includes Sallie Griffin, John F. Bales, Marianlouise Turner, Mayor Robert W. Cawley (ex officio), Mayor Winthrop Pike (ex officio) and School Superintendent Paul Houston (ex officio). The six citizen-members are appointed to the board for five year terms by the mayors of the two municipalities and the consent of the governing bodies.

The board of trustees meets at the library at 5 p.m. on the second Monday of each month. The next regular session will be Monday, February 8. At that time the board will consider scheduling additional night meetings to be held at 8, refinements in the 1982 operating budget, and the role of the library as a community center.

All meetings of the board are open to the public.

WIGGINS, AGAIN

At Planning Board. Construction of a parking lot behind 37 Wiggins Street will be heard before the Planning Board next Tuesday, but probably not until about 9:30. The 8 p.m. meeting, in Valley Road, has an agenda which will begin with approval of the revised site plan for Palmer Square.

The board will also act on previously discussed residential adjustments involving Princeton Theological Seminary (conditional use for two residential apartments) and Princeton University (use of dormitory rooms in an Education-I zone).

SPORT IS TOPIC

Of Lectures at University. With "Super Sunday 1982" now a matter of record, it may be a good time to turn away from the television set and look at the place of "Sport in American Life." Five different areas of the subject will be explored this term in Princeton University's Stafford Little Lecture Series.

Tennis great Arthur Ashe, author Roger Angell, Donna A. Lopiano of the Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women, philosopher Drew Hyland and sociologist Stanton Wheeler will examine "Sport in American Life" from their own distinct vantages.

Miss Lopiano will open the series on Thursday, February 4, at 8 in the Senate Chamber, Whig Hall. "Power Politics: Methods of Controlling the Growth and Influence of Women's Intercollegiate Athletics" will be the topic for the director of intercollegiate athletics for women at the University of Texas at Austin, who is a world-class softball player and has just completed a year as president of the AIAW.

A reporter on the baseball scene for the past 20 years, Mr. Angell will discuss "Baseball: A Losing Game." Angell, whose books include "The Summer Game" and "Five Seasons," is senior fiction editor for the New Yorker magazine. His talk will be Tuesday, Feburary 16, at 8 in the Woodrow Wilson School Auditorium.

"Playing Dangerously: Reflections on Risk-Taking in Sport" will be the focus of Drew Hyland's lecture on Wednesday, February 24, at 8 in the Woodrow Wilson School Auditorium. Mr. Hyland has served as president and a member of the executive council of the Philosophical Society for the Study of Sport. He is a professor of philosophy at Trinity College, Hartford, Conn., where he has been on the faculty since 1967. Among his articles that have appeared in a variety of publications are "Competition and Friendship," "Participation in Athletics: Is It Worth the Suffering?" and "Playing to Win: How Much Should It Hurt?"

Sociology and criminology are Stanton Wheeler's main areas of interest. He will speak on "Sport, the Fan, and the Community" on April 1 at 8 in the Woodrow Wilson School Auditorium. Mr. Wheeler, who is professor of law and sociology at Yale, is co-author of "Socialization After Childhood" and "Juvenile Delinquency: Its Prevention and Control." A member of the National Institute of Mental Health, he has served on national and local panels on law enforcement and the administration of justice.

The last lecture in the series will be given by Arthur Ashe, who captained the U.S. Davis Cup Team, and whose biggest win came in 1975 when he electrified the tennis circuit by upsetting Jimmy Connors in the Wimbledon final. Minorities in sport will be Ashe's topic. The date for his lecture has not yet been set.

All of the lectures are open to the public and free of charge.

BOOKS SOUGHT

For Bryn Mawr Sale. The Bryn Mawr Club is seeking tax-deductible donations of books and records for its 51st annual book sale to be held in the spring in the Borough Gymnasium.

Cartons may be dropped off at the Bryn Mawr Book Sale warehouse, 32 Vandeventer Street, from 9:30 to 11:30 every Wednesday and from 10 to noon every Saturday.

Tax credit slips may be obtained at those times. Questions about donations and the sale in general should be directed to Ruta Smithson, 896-0515.

Proceeds from this non-profit fund-raising project go toward scholarships to central New Jersey students who attend Bryn Mawr College, in Bryn Mawr, Pa.

CONFERENCE ON AGING

Topic of Public Meeting. Vivian Carlin, Director of the Division of Aging for the New Jersey State Department of Community Services, will discuss aging and her impressions as a delegate to the recent White House Conference on Aging. Ms. Carlin, a member of the Princeton Area League of Women Voters, has been active internationally in geriatrics and has written at length on housing for the elderly.

The discussion will be held Wednesday, February 3 at 8 p.m. in room No. 8 off the lower lobby of the Woodrow Wilson School. The public meeting is co-sponsored by the American Association of University Women, Business and Professional Women of Princeton, League of Women Voters, and Older Women's League.

FANTASTIC ITEMS

For Bid at Auction. Luncheon in New York City with actress Joanne Woodward and a motorcycle ride and lunch with Mercer County Executive Bill Mathesius are two of the items up for bid in a fantasy auction entitled "Baubles, Bangles and Bids" to be held Sunday, April 3, at ETS.

Columnist Art Buchwald will be the auctioneer for the event, which is a spring fundraiser for the Association for the Advancement of the Mentally Handicapped.

Other items include a seven-day vacation for two at the Colony Beach and Tennis Resort in Sarasota, Fla.; an Alpine chalet, which sleeps nine, at Pocono Springs Estates for one week; a vacation house for a week in Woodstock, Vt.; a Giants Stadium suite box for a Cosmos soccer game with buffet and cocktails for 18 people;

Also, a day long champagne cruise for two on a 27-foot sailboat with crew, lunch included; box seats at the Philadelphia Orchestra; an evening with the New Jersey Brass Quintet; Opera at the Met, or an evening of chamber music provided by the Mercer County Symphonic Orchestra.

Box seats and presenting the winning trophies at the Meadowlands or Monmouth Race Track are also available, as are lessons and weekend tennis on a private court, complete housecleaning or an afternoon at a hair design salon.

The money raised at the affair will allow the AAMH to help mentally handicapped adults live full and productive lives in the community. Questions about the fantasy fund-raiser, tickets and donations may be directed to Sheila Goldstein at the AAMH office, 924-7174.

OBEDIENCE TRIAL SET

For Saturday. The Princeton Dog Training Club will hold its annual American Kennel Club licensed dog obedience trial on Saturday. The trial will begin at 9 in the Princeton Day School gym on The Great Road. Lunch and refreshments will be available and there is ample free parking at the school. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children.

LEARN A LANGUAGE

At Any Level. The Princeton Language Group, whose staff of 30 can provide teaching and translation in 25 languages, will start a new 15-week semester in late January.

Beginners or advanced conversationalists, children or adults, travelers or business people are invited to register. A tutoring program for high school and college students is also offered.

Private and semi-private classes are offered at the beginning, intermediate and advanced levels. Lessons are given in the instructors' homes, and semi-private classes are held to four students, with the goal of maximum student participation. Arrangements may also be made for special classes.

Textbooks and audio-visual equipment are used to teach vocabulary, idiomatic expressions and writing. In children's classes, teachers also use games, toys and picture-books.

In addition to language instruction, the Group has a translation and interpreting service, used by business firms throughout the area. The Group's instructors are qualified to translate literary, technical, scientific and educational materials into English, or other languages.

Services are available in 25 languages, ranging from French and Spanish to Korean and the classic Greek of antiquity. The Group was founded in 1974.

Information about classes and translation services may be obtained by calling 924-2252 or 924-9335.

Electronic Mail

If your business is interested in the new E-COM postal service (Electronic Computer Originated Mail), you are invited to an informal meeting Monday, February 22 at 10 a.m. at the General Mail Facility, 680 Route 130, Trenton.

Questions about E-COM may be addressed to Manager, Retail Sales and Services, 680 Route 130, Trenton, N.J. 08650, and if they are received by Monday, February 8, they will be answered at the meeting by Jerry Silver, regional co-ordinator.

E-COM provides for two-day delivery of electronic computer originated mail anywhere in the continental United States. It allows computer-generated messages to 25 specially equipped postal facilities, where they are transformed into hard copy, placed in an envelope and delivered, first class.

NEW DIRECTOR NAMED

By Recording for the Blind. Mrs. Anne Young has been appointed studio director of the Princeton Unit of Recording for the Blind. She succeeds Mrs. Burr Kansas who resigned January 1 after 3½ years of service. Mrs. Richard Paynter took charge of the studio during the search for a new director.

Mrs. Young has lived in Princeton 12 years and has been a volunteer at Recording for the Blind for four years. She has served as a docent at the University Art Museum for seven years, and as chairman of docents for two. She is a pastoral care deacon at Nassau Presbyterian Church.

NEW LOCATION SET

For Dr. Sheehan Lecture. Dr. George Sheehan, runner-cardiologist will speak at a meeting of the Holistic Health Association on Tuesday, February 2, at 8 at 50 McCosh Hall instead of the place previously announced.

Dr. Sheehan, who will speak on the topic, "Holistic Medicine — an Impartial View" is credited as being the philosopher of the running movement. Having run in his youth, he rediscovered the sport as an instrument of his "rebirth" at age 45, and since then has written five books, the latest of which is "The Running Life."

For those who would like to know more about Dr. Sheehan, there will be a showing of his movie, "Life on the Run," at the Unitarian Church this Wednesday at 8.

I AM A MUSHROOM: Images are transleted from the familier to the extraordinery, using college, positive and negative images, prints and photo engreving in the collection of photographs by Neomi Sevege et the Squibb Gallery.

CREATIVE PHOTOGRAPHY

By Naomi Savage. When Gertrude Stein wrote her now famous line, "A rose, is a rose, is a rose ..." she had not yet seen the photography of Naomi Savage. If she had, she might have reconsidered. Said rose would not have had a chance if this creative and innovative photographer had chosen it as a subject for her work. Instead, the noted rose might have become a shadow, disappeared leaving only negative spaces, or have been reinterpreted into a multiple form surrendering all of its original "roseness."

Although Savage is perfectly capable of capturing the appearance of any subject that catches her fancy, and is equally skilled at expressing the poetic essence of her themes, reality is only the beginning of the creative experience in much of her work. Often, the image serves only as a point of departure, and is manipulated, altered, expanded and re-expressed until, in some cases, it all but disappears and we are left with surface, tone and space to delight us.

The collection of Naomi Savage's photographs that can be seen at the Squibb Gallery beginning January 30th illustrates the almost unlimited artistic possibilities that a truly creative and responsive photographer can find within even the most mundane of subjects.

Nothing is too ordinary or simple to become the basis of a pleasing, often complex photograph. Lipton's alphabet noodles, paint tubes, rubber gloves and scraps of paper are but a few of the many commonplace objects that become works of art when viewed through this photographer's lens.

The variety in use of subject and materials to be found in this display demonstrates Savage's creative range. She is equally effective in a traditional or innovative mode. Her sensitivity to her subject can be seen in a series of portraits of well known people that includes Virgil Thompson, Philip Roth, John Cage and Peter Benchley. In this series we are made conscious of the character of each subject, sometimes through the use of light, other times by the character of the printing.

Many of Savage's more innovative works also begin with the portrait. Here, respect for subject is combined with a concern for the expressive nature of materials and technique. Solarized negatives, plated daugerrotypes, half tone screens, high contrast papers are but a few of the methods used for frequently unusual, always effective results.

Savage never considers herself finished with a subject. She often returns to the same image and converts it into a line etching, a photo-engraving plate or an inkless embossing. Frequently she enlarges the image's effect by adding color or chemically altering surfaces.

Sometimes an image is laid to rest and its negative space becomes the positive form. Other times a single image is repeated until it assumes an identity quite independent from its original nature.

For the viewer, this display is a graphic demonstration of the creative process as well as a collection of excellent photography. We are made aware of the unique relationship between Naomi Savage and the world around her, conscious of her responsiveness to her subject and of her creative application of technique. Wit, too, is part of this show.

Clearly this photographer is having a good time, is comfortable with her subject and is able to enjoy the humor in the simple, the inanimate. When this does not suffice, Savage's own sense of humor and fondness for her work communicates easily and effectively, often providing entertainment as well as art.

At The Nassau Gallery. Here, too, photography is used as a creative medium in which subject often takes second place to artistic effect. Although all three sets of photographs begin with a realistic image, it is so carefully disguised in most of the work that these photographs frequently appear to be pure abstractions.

Heidi Jain starts with architectural forms but by the time we see them they have been reduced to minimal constructions. Strong shapes are further developed by intense contrasts that create dramatic effects. Barbara Freymuth manipulates her images by repeating forms, often using mirror images, until an abstract geometry of tone and shape is formed. Pattern, textures and light effects become design elements with pleasing results.

Eileen Hohmuth uses the human form as her subject.

Our once-a-year sale is almost over.

As January comes to a close, so does our once-a-year store wide sale where we take 10-40% off almost everything.

What's everything? All our best stuff—and that includes our butcher block tables, upholstery, storage systems, music benches, desks, bedrooms, chairs and even marvelous accessories. Of course, there are some things, like brand new items and stuff that's over-sold, that we don't put on sale. (But then no one is totally perfect.)

But what is on sale is amazing. So come in right away because on February 1 the prices go up, and you'll have to wait until 1983 for another great store wide sale. And by 1983, who knows where prices will be.

Clubs and Organizations

The Amateur Astronomers' Association of Princeton (AAAP) will meet on Tuesday, February 9, at 8 in Princeton University's Peyton Hall.

Richard Johnson will discuss continental motion and local geology, relating plate tectonics to the geology of the Hopewell Valley area. Mr. Johnson is with Roy Westen Associates, an environmental engineering firm in Westchester, Pa. The meeting is open to the public.

The Association holds monthly educational meetings on the second Tuesday of every month in Peyton Hall, which is located on Ivy Lane, off Washington Road. In addition, public observing sessions are held each clear Friday during the spring and fall at the AAAP Observatory in Washington Crossing State Park (N.J.).

The newly formed YWCA Evening Book-of-the-Month Group will meet on Tuesday, February 9 at 7:30 in the lounge of the YM-YWCA Building, Paul Robeson Place, to discuss "Wapshot Chronicle" by John Cheever.

For information, call 924-5571, extension 22.

The Mercer County Stroke Club will meet Wednesday, February 3, at 11 in the Activities Room of Merwick, 79 Bayard Lane. Club members are planning a program that will be of interest to all. Members should bring a sandwich; dessert and beverages will be provided.

For information on club activities, call Mrs. Belton, president, at 737-9063, or Mrs. Widman, secretary, at 883-3019.

The annual meeting of the Republican Association of Princeton will take place on Sunday at 4 in the court room above Township police headquarters.

Board members will present year-end reports and new officers will be elected.

All who are interested are invited.

Dr. David Brown will speak on "The Emotional Life of Gifted Children" Thursday at 8 at a meeting of the Mercer County Association for Gifted and Talented Children. The meeting will be held at the Educational Improvement Center, Route 1, north of Alexander Road. Dr. Brown is a counselling psychologist and is presently an adjunct associate professor of psychology at the Graduate School of Education at Rider College.

Interested members of the public are invited. For further information, call Jennifer Connell at 443-6872.

Doug Kelbaugh, of Kelbaugh & Lee Architects, will give a lecture and slide presentation on "The Seven Principles of Energy-Efficient Architecture." The talk will also cover architectural design as it relates to urban design and future solar communities.

Interested members of the public are invited.

Gay People, Princeton, will hold a talent night Thursday at 8 in the Unitarian Church, Cherry Hill and State Roads.

The International Club will meet Saturday from 8 to 10 at the home of Roy Huggins, 336 Princeton Road, Plainsboro. Terry Karschner of the New Jersey Department of Environmental Protection, will give a talk with slides on "Preservation of Historical Monuments in the Princeton Area." Refreshments will be served.

"How to Understand and Help Ourselves and Our Families throughout the Grief Process" will be the topic for a meeting of the Mercer Area Chapter of The Compassionate Friends Tuesday at 8 in Trinity Episcopal Church, 33 Mercer Street.

The Compassionate Friends is a national self-help organization of bereaved parents. Mercer Area Chapter meets the first Tuesday of each month at Trinity Church to help foster the physical and emotional health of the bereaved family. The group offers friendship and understanding while promoting a positive resolution of the grief experienced upon the death of a child.

For further information, contact Mercer Area Chapter, the Compassionate Friends, P.O. Box 969, Hightstown, 08520, or call 799-3414.

FIGHTING FOR EQUAL RIGHTS

is necessary...and expensive!

THE NEW YORK TIMES, SUNDAY, JANUARY 17, 1982

Government Sees A Way Out On Equal Rights

The Justice Department last week hit a compromise on the equal rights amendment that could satisfy everyone — for the time being. In a closely watched brief, the department told the Supreme Court that it should vacate a lower court ruling on the proposed amendment not on the merits of the case, but because it had been decided prematurely — that is, before the amendment had been ratified.

The ruling, by Judge Marion J. Callister of the United States District Court in Idaho, held that Congress acted unconstitutionally in extending the ratification deadline for the amendment from 1979 to June 30 this year and that states were within their rights in reversing ratification votes. The amendment is three votes short of the 38 needed for ratification, but five states have rescinded their votes.

The Justice Department brief, signed by Lawrence G. Wallace, a Deputy Solicitor General, said the department's proposed course "would permit a resolution of the current challenges to the district court's decision without requiring the Court to decide, on an expedited basis, difficult substantive issues that are premature for adjudication." The National Organization for Women, a codefendant in the case, has requested a Feb. 4 hearing.

By calling an expedited review "inadvisable," the brief pacified conservative opponents of the amendment who earlier protested the Government's action encouraging its passage. "It's not the ideal situation, but it's something we can live with," Richard Viguerie, a conservative strategist and spokesman said.

But the department's proposal may have the practical effect, desired by the amendment's proponents, of quickly nullifying Judge Callister's decision. "Our case is strengthened," said Phyllis Segal of the NOW Legal Defense Fund, "by the fact that in the face of all the political opposition the Justice Department still came out telling the Court that the decision is so wrong that it can't be ignored."

Art in Princeton

Anatomical fragments in close-up make us more conscious of the subject at the same time that we are made aware of rhythms and textures. Light becomes a dramatic, sculptural element highlighting the undulating shapes that appear almost like an anatomical landscape rather than figure studies.

At Western Electric. Most of the contemporary black American and African art on display here uses black imagery without the strong forms that we have come to expect. Paintings, prints and drawings use black people as their subjects but there is little to connect this work with the artistic power of African design elements.

The impact of this collection is weakened further by the fact that we are not made aware of the national origins of the artists since this, to some degree, affects the way we would judge the art. Some woven work from Lesotho (a country) and Zulu (a tribe) are identified and these, even without labels, are among the strongest and most interesting works in the collection.

They are accompanied by work in other media, some finished and slick, some the work of artists with far less skill. A fair amount of the collection is made up of commercial reproductions rather than original pieces and these, too, temper the quality of the display.

—Helen Schwartz

ON VIEW, AT ETS

Works of Princeton Artist. Paintings by Princeton artist Ruth Lieberherr will be exhibited in Lounge B, Conant Hall, Educational Testing Service, starting next Monday and continuing through March 19. The exhibit is open from 9 to 11 a.m. and 1:30 to 4 Monday through Friday.

The artist is a native of Switzerland and studied art at the Kunstgewerbeschule, Zurich. She wrote and illustrated the picture book, "D'Raupe and de Schmoeterling." Her works have been exhibited at McCarter Theatre, Mercer County Artists Exhibition, University League in Princeton and other galleries in New Jersey.

ARTISTS INVITED

To Enter Show. Artists 18 years and older are invited to enter the third annual National Print Exhibition scheduled to open at Trenton State College April 1. Deadline for mailed entries is February 22. Deadline for hand-delivered entries is February 20. Deadline for submitting the entry form, jury form and fee, is February 8.

Artists may enter one or two works. The $15 entrance fee [$12 for hand-delivered entries] will cover both submissions.

The juror will be Andrew Stasik, director of the Pratt Graphics Center, New York. He is associate professor of print-making at Pratt Institute.

PAINT IN ITALY

With Ceglia. If you'd like to paint this summer in an 18th-century farmhouse on Lake Maggiore, you're invited to join the Painting Workshop in Italy, to be led by artist Vincent Ceglia. The 21-day workshop will be held from June 16 to July 6. Sessions will be held each day. Mondays and the week-ends will be reserved for museum tours, visits to galleries and the studios of artists.

Students at various levels of experience will work in groups or independently, sometimes in the studio and sometimes on location. Critiques and demonstrations will be given in watercolor, acrylic and mixed-media painting.

Information may be obtained by calling 215-493-4498.

ART, IN ADS

In Trenton State Show. Newspaper ads, letterhead designs, posters and brochures are part of the exhibit, "Central New Jersey Design 1982: An Exhibition of Advertising Art," opening this Thursday at 7 p.m. in Holman Gallery of Trenton State College. The college art department and the Mercer County Cultural and Heritage Commission are sponsors.

A reception this Thursday from 7 to 9 p.m., will celebrate the opening of the show. The exhibit will be on view through February 14.

The gallery is open Mondays through Fridays from noon until 3; Thursdays from 7 to 9 p.m. and Sundays from 1-3. Admission is free.

ON AMERICAN ART

Two Courses Offered. Two non-credit courses on American art will be given by the Rider College School for Continuing Studies during the spring semester. Marilyn Levitt, assistant professor of art, will teach both courses. The fee for each is $30.

American art from the Colonial period through the Civil War will be given Wednesdays from 1-2 p.m., February 10, 17 and 24. Art since the Civil War will be given Wednesdays at the same time, on March 3, 10 and 17.

Additional information is available from the School for Continuing Studies office, 609-896-5033.

ART, BY FACULTY

At MCCC. An exhibition of creative work by members of the visual arts faculty at Mercer County Community College will open Friday, January 29, and will be on view at no charge to the public, through February 19.

The exhibit will be in the Triangle and Library Galleries on MCCC's campus in West Windsor. A public reception will be held from 7 to 9 at the galleries on the opening day.

The exhibit will feature the work of Barbara Tiso, ceramics instructor and Gary Saretzky, a member of the photography adjunct faculty. All other members of the visual arts faculty will display their work in photography, print-making, painting, drawing, sculpture, ceramics and advertising design.

Faculty members are William Barksdale, Vincent Ceglio, James Colavita, Paula Gillen, Jack Harris, Mel Leipzig, Frank Rivera, Evelyn Stern, Barbara Tiso, Larry White and Jack Williams.

Adjunct faculty and part-time staff are Bob Alcorn, Frank Bitetto, Pat Hutchinson, Heidi Jain, Peter Krumins, Joan Needham, Mary Peck, George Poli, Elton Pope-Lance, Gary Saretsky, Randy Salewski and Phil Smith.

REALISM

In Rutgers Show. "Realism and Realities: The Other Side of American Painting, 1940-1960", consisting of more than 150 works in a range of media, will be on view at the Rutgers University Art Gallery from Sunday through March 26.

The gallery is in Voorhees Hall, Hamilton Street near George Street in New Brunswick. Admission is free, and the hours are 10 to 4:30, Mondays, Tuesdays, Thursdays and Fridays, and noon to 5, Saturdays and Sundays. The gallery is closed Wednesdays.

Lenders include the Whitney Museum, the Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Hirshhorn Museum and Sculpture Garden. Artists represented include Andrew Wyeth, Ben Shahn, Reginald Marsh, Raphael Soyer, Milton Avery, George Tooker, Peter Blume, Fairfield Porter, Henry Koerner and Jared French.

A symposium on American representational art of the period will be held Saturday, February 13. The program, which will begin at 10:30 a.m. and continue through the day, is open to the public. Participating artists will be Peter Blume, Henry Koerner, Stephen Greene and Isabel Bishop

FOLK ART CLASSES SET

In Rocky Hill. The Rocky Hill Community Group has expanded its Folk Art Program to three classes.

An advanced class, which is a continuation of the beginning course offered last fall, will meet on Wednesday mornings starting February 3, from 9 to 11:30. Two new beginning courses will be offered, one meeting Monday mornings from 9 to 11:30 starting Monday, and a second meeting Wednesday evenings from 7:30 to 10 starting February 3. All classes will be held at the Rocky Hill Community Group building in Rocky Hill for 6 weeks.

Folk art designs from several countries will be taught. These designs are usually painted on serviceable wood or tin objects such as containers, boxes, or larger furniture pieces.

The instructor, Nancy Cohen, has taught in Maryland and locally in craft shops and the YWCA. She has studied folk art and decorative painting with artists in Maryland and New Jersey, with Jo Sonja Jansen in California, Helan Barrick of Ohio, and several other nationally known folk and decorative artists. Mrs. Cohen's work has been displayed at the Rocky Hill Library, and is available in several area hand-craft gift shops.

For more information on the Rocky Hill Community Group classes call Janet Sykes, 874-3251, or Nancy Cohen, 466-0665.

IMPROVE YOUR BODY

At Nautilus Center. The word is out! There is something for everyone at the Princeton Nautilus Fitness Center located in the Princeton Shopping Center. Opened now for eighteen months by Anne Knudson-Fitzpatrick, the exercise spa is enjoying a steady growth of services and an increasing clientele.

In fact, many Nautilus enthusiasts try to congregate at the club during the same hours in order to enjoy chatting while working off unneeded inches. It is now recognized that the Nautilus system of resistance exercise is one of the most effective ways to get into and stay in shape.

EXERCISE RESISTANCE: Or vice versa. Anne Knudaon-Fitzpatrick, owner of the Nautilua Fitness center and her manager Joe Baylis demonstrate the pullover exerciae machine. It ia one of several machinea used for the resistance exercise program developed by Nautilua. The saion is now open as early as 6 three morninga a week ao there is no excuse not to get into ahape!

Mindful of these advantages, many athletes attend regular work-out sessions three times a week, beginning with a run on the indoor track, stretches, or five minutes on the exercycle for warm-ups. The preliminary work-out is recommended in order to prepare the muscles for the more strenuous and effective exercise on the Nautilus machines, each of which strengthens a different part of the body.

Among the several athletic teams which frequent the center are the champion Peddie swim team and the PHS varsity lacrosse team. Football, basketball, and baseball teams also sign up for special sessions.

There are many advantages for group memberships which is why so many corporations and companies in the area have joined for their employees. Group rates are naturally less expensive. For example: a group of three to five people costs $325 a year; six to nine people, $295; and ten or more can sign up for $275. Considering the availability of instruction and services and the flexibility of the hours, most clients think the price is reasonable.

Busy executive men and women can be seen entering the Nautilus center as early as six o'clock on Monday, Wednesday and Friday mornings. On Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesdays, it is open until ten o'clock; on Thursday and Friday until nine. Working people are further accommodated by Saturday and Sunday hours from ten until five.

Many people attend the three weekly sessions, which take from 20 to 40 minutes to complete, not only for cosmetic reasons but for reasons of health as well. Some patients are encouraged by their doctors to use the Nautilus system to rebuild injured muscles. Often such a treatment can be paid for in part by one's insurance.

Individual Attention. Joe Baylis, manager of the spa, with his expert team of instructors (many of whom are athletes as well) see that one-on-one instruction and guidance is available at all times. There are always at least three instructors on duty to monitor a well-rounded, safe program of exercise.

"We really tailor a healthy program for each customer according to his or her own needs. They are not competing with anyone but themselves, and there is enough variety with the machines to keep the workouts interesting," says Mr. Baylis. Heart patients and those with orthopedic problems bring notes from their doctors indicating what kind of exercise is recommended, and that advice is strictly followed. "Cardiovascular work-out is important for everyone, it's just like any other muscle, it can be strengthened!" says Mr. Baylis.

Each client receives his own clip board and record of progress during the first visit which is supervised by an instructor, who will then follow through with demonstrations and assistance in using all of the 14 machines.

After the initial stretch period, the routine proceeds, beginning with the lower body and smaller muscles and on to the upper body and the larger muscle areas.

The Duo-poly hip and back machine is said to be "the only machine in existence which exercises the muscles of the lower back without compressing the lumbar vertabrae." Once these muscles are strengthened, there is less chance of back discomfort, which is why it is such a favorite of expectant mothers who also frequent the salon.

Many women continue the program through their seventh month of pregnancy, which they insist is made more comfortable by the exercise. Some young mothers have returned to Nautilus as soon as three weeks after the birth of their babies to get back into shape.

The hip compound abduction-adduction machine provides a full-range exercise for both the inner thighs and the outer hip and thigh muscles. Many pulled muscles are caused by an imbalance of strength in this area so this machine was designed to correct this problem.

Good posture will result after regular use of the double shoulder machine while the upper torso and arms will be strengthened by another exerciser. Others include: the row machine which is good for the rear shoulders; the neck-torso machine to help rounded shoulders; the multi-exerciser for calves and hips; and, most importantly the abdominal machine, which will trim one's midsection where fat often surrounds vital organs, thus overloading the heart.

Extra Services. Numerous services accompany one's membership at Nautilus. While couples and families are encouraged to exercise together if they like, there are separate saunas and showers for men and women. Massage, facials, pedicures and manicures by appointment are available with cosmetologist Denise Martinez. Whirlpools will sooth sore muscles and loosen up tight ones.

It's New to Us

Classes in yoga for $20 for an eight-week session are held from three to four on Saturdays, while aerobic dancing is offered from seven to eight on Tuesday and Thursday nights. An argometer to test stress while exercising is on hand at the spa to ensure safe use and the degree of effort which should be made by each client.

Skiers flock to Nautilus to get in shape for the slopes. Their great inspiration is the owner of the salon and a national ski champion, Mrs. Fitzpatrick, who spends many weekends competing in downhill slalom.

When asked how long it will take to get into shape, Mr. Baylis promises that noticeable changes will take place in six weeks, but that one becomes stronger every day. Of course a combination diet exercise program is most effective.

"I really think that one shouldn't go on one of these fad diets, just change the one you have. The longer it takes to get into shape you'd like to be, the longer it will last," he comments.

STUCK IN THE HOUSE?

Try Some Repairs. The chills of winter weather encourages homeowners to stay home to complete many projects and improvements which have been put off for months. Now is the time to take advantage of the superb sale items offered at Princeton Hardware.

Located in the Princeton Shopping Center, the store has a fine selection of electric tools which will make your projects simpler. Regularly priced at $42, a Skil ⅜ inch variable speed reversing drill is now on sale for $29.99, as is a variable speed jig saw of the same brand. Skil's high speed orbital sander is now $24.99 and Dremel's chain saw sharpening tool kit, which will sharpen any size chain in minutes, is now $27.99.

Why not stay off the icy streets and enjoy doing a home upholstery project using an Arrow heavy duty staple gun, which now sells for $12.66? Other useful items include: a leverlock rule, Stanley screwdriver sets, wrench sets, locking pliers and drive socket sets. A Black and Decker circular saw is now $49.88 and their hobbycrafter is $22.88.

As we all huddle by the fires it might be a good idea to take a fire safety check of your home. Princeton Hardware has a large assortment of smoke alarms starting at $9.95 and other fire prevention equipment such as the all-important fire ladders which should be kept in each room inaccessible to the outdoors. Kidde fire extinguishers are on sale for $9.99.

For the Fireplace. Handsome fireplace accoutrements such as wrought iron grates and tools, fire log rollers for rolling newspapers, leather log carriers, and even old-fashioned popcorn poppers to use in the fireplace are popular favorites at the hardware store.

In order to keep all the heat rendered from the hearth inside and not lost, the shop features a good supply of weather-stripping materials for doors and windows and electrical outlets.

Cooking is always a warming pastime during cold spells. The shop has a large selection of basic baking equipment of aluminim, cast iron and stainless steel. Cake pans, molds, muffin tins, and even small bread loaf pans, good for gifts of bread, are available.

Unfortunately, security is always a necessary consideration. Princeton Hardware has put a number of locks on sale including: a single-cylinder deadlock, $9.99; a double-cylinder deadlock, $15.99; a passage locket, $4.99, an entrance lockset, $9.99 and a child protection latch, which keeps little fingers out of places they should not be. The shop will install window locks and repair storm windows as well.

For a fresher look, Glidden paints are presently on sale. Kitchen appliances will aid you or make nice gifts such as a Sunbeam food processor, an Osterizer or a stove top or electric wok. Pressure cookers are still very popular at Princeton Hardware where many find shopping unhurried and pleasant. Manager Joe Luther and his salesmen are always on hand to lend a helpful hand in choosing whatever fits your needs.

TIGERS TIE CORNELL

In Overtime Contest. In a game dominated by the fine play of the two goalies, Princeton and Cornell tied 2-2 in an Ivy League hockey game Monday night in Baker Rink.

It was a contest that either team could easily have won, but in the end the play of the Tigers' Ron Dennis and Cornell's Brian Hayward made the difference.

Haywood turned away 39 shots by the Orange and Black, while Dennis blocked 31. Each goalie was tested many times from close range.

The tie leaves Princeton still atop the league standings with a 2-0-2 mark, good for six points. Cornell now has one point after losing its first two, also in overtime.

While a tie is not what the Tigers would have preferred, they had to scramble at the end to achieve that result. Leading the league in power-play efficiency, they wasted seven opportunities with a man up, and a two-minute two-man advantage in the first period.

The Big Red's aggressive box defense when it wos shorthanded repeatedly thwarted Princeton's efforts. The Tigers were often limited to long shots from the point, many of which never reached Hayward.

During its two-man ndvantage, the Orange and Black failed to get off a single shot.

Princeton dominnted the first period offensively, as Cornell was hit with one penalty after another. However, it beat Hayward just once, at the 6:50 mark when Panl Matthews took ndvantage of a Big Red defensive lapse. Ray Cosey and Ken Koenig picked up nssists.

Cornell finnlly got its first of two power play chances late in the first, and promptly tied the score at 1-1 during a four on three situation.

The second period was scoreless, with the Tigers unable to take advantage of a douhle minor penalty handed out to Cornell's Terry Gage, who would up with 12 minutes of penalties for his evening's work.

In the final period, Cornell hroke on top for the first time when a long shot from the point was deflected past Dennis. That came with just 5:38 remaining to be played.

Princeton pressed feverishly for the tying goal, and was rewarded with just 1:39 left when Chuck Higgins skated in from a sharp angle on the left side, and fired the puck past Hayward. Jim Matthews was credited with an assist

A 10-minute overtime produced several close calls for both sides, but Dennis and Hayward would not yield.

RETURN MATCH FRIDAY

For Tigers against Yale. It's been seven weeks since the Yale hockey leam, boasting a 5-1 record, cnme to Baker Rink to play Princeton.

The Bulldogs left with their tails between their legs, and a sound 6-2 thrashing, administered by an aroused Tiger sextet.

This Friday evening in New Haven, the Orange and Black will not have the element of snrprise. Yale, no doubt, will be fully ready to avenge that December loss.

Saturday, January 30

Yale at Brown

The Elis have continued to play solid hockey in the intervening weeks. In a trip west during Christmas vacation, Yale knocked off Colorado College twice. In January, it beat Cornell at Ithaca in overtime, before dropping contests to Providence and Toronto.

Since then it has returned to form, beating Vermont, 5-3, on January 16, and this past Saturday defeated Dartmouth in New Haven That victory gave the Elis a 2-1 Ivy mark, good for second place in the league. In between Yale dropped a 3-2 overtime decision to Boston College.

The Dartmouth victory gave the Bulldogs a 6-4 record in ECAC Division I play, the only Ivy team currently registering a mark above .500. Yale's captain Dan Poliziani, held scoreless here, has moved into second place on the Elis' all-time scoring list with 117 points through the Vermont game.

TOUGH TIMES FOR PENN

Can Tigers Take Advantage? If you think the Princeton basketball team has had its troubles this season, take a look at Penn. The Quakers have won only once since December 5.

The Red and Blue got off to nn auspicious start, winning its first three games, including a victory over Stanford in its own tournament in California. It's been almost all downhill since then -- a 9-game losing streak, the longest in the history of the sport at Penn.

The losses have been to teams like Villanova, Navy, LaSalle, Brown and Yale. Finally, last Saturday afternoon, the Quakers stopped their skid with a 58-44 win over Penn State. In the Ivy League, the Quakers dropped one-point decisions to both Brown and Yale.

Coming off a 20-8 season a year ago, and a 13-2 Ivy Record after a 54-40 loss to the Tigers in a playoff for the Ivy title, Penn had been expected to field another above average team. Coach Bob Weinhauer could count on four of five starters returning, with just captain Ken Hall departing last June.

But Weinhauer was hit with two unexpected departures as well. Senior guard Angelo Reynolds left the university, and 6'8 senior center Vincent Ross was declared academically ineligible. That still leaves some solid holdovers, including 6'5 junior Paul Little, 6'6 junior Michael Brown and 6'7 junior Avery Rawlings, but Weinhauer has not found a winning combination in almost two months.

Opportunity for Tigers. Princeton and Penn, who again this year were expected to decide the Ivy title between themselves, may well be in the thick of a four or five team race that goes down to the final weekend However, this Saturday's contest at the Palestra affords the Orange and Black a good opportunity to gain an important edge.

A victory in Philadelphia would put the Tigers a step ahead of the other Ivy teams, who will still have to play there. It would give them a 2-1 mark for three road games, with two home contests coming up the first weekend in February against Columbia and Cornell.

Despite its current problems, Penn is no pushover, and any win in the Palestra will not be easy. If the Red and Blue can force Princeton into the kind of ragged play, marked by personal fouls and turnovers, that has plagued the Tigers frequently thus far, chances for victory will quickly evaporate.

Pete Carril will be looking for solid games from not only from Craig Robinson and Gordon Enderle, but Rich Simkus as well. Simkus shnwed signs of coming to life in scoring in the trip to New Haven and Providence.

And from guards Gary Knapp, Billy Ryan and Jeff Pagano, he'll need error-free ballhandling all the way through. Four consecutive turnovers just before the half ended in the Brown game helped spark the Bruin comeback, which ended in a 58-53 victory.

An indication of how well the Tigers are playing after the two-week layoff for exams, was expected to be demonstrated in a game against Colgate scheduled for this past Tuesday night in Hamilton, N.Y. [Too late to be included here].

PATE WINS TENNIS

At Jadwin. Unseeded Dave Pate, a sophomore from Texas Christian University, captured the men's singles title last weekend in the Prince National Indoor Intercollegiate Tennis Championships at Jadwin Gym. Pate defeated Pepperdine's Brad Gilbert in straight sets, 6-2, 7-6, in the finals on Sunday.

A defending NCAA doubles champion, Pate marched to the finals by defeating Danny Weiss of Northwestern, Rich Gallien of Pepperdine, Mike Leach of Michigan and Mike DePalmer of Tennessee. Pate's match with De Palmer, the tourney's No. 6 seed, was a classic battle that required a tiebreaker to settle the decisive third set. Each player won 11 points in the tiebreaker, before Pate put together back-to-back winners to win the match. A capacity crowd gave the two collegians a standing ovation once the three-hour-twenty-minute affair ended.

In the men's doubles final, Georgia's Ola Malmquist and Allen Miller defeated Pepperdine's Rich Gallien and John Van Nostrand, 6-3, 3-6, 6-3, to take the title. The win marked the first time Georgia had captured a national championship in tennis.

And, in an exhibition match, Mary Lou Piatek, the 17th ranked woman in the world, defeated 18-year-old Princeton freshman Andrea Leand, 8-7. A crowd of more than 1,200 witnessed the final day of action at Jadwin.

PDS SPLITS A PAIR

In Hockey. A victory over Delbarton a week ago Tuesday, and a loss to Hill last Friday, kept the Princeton Day hockey team smack on the .500 mark with a 4-4-1 record.

This week the Panthers will play a pair of games, meeting Pingry at home on Wednesday, and visiting Brick Township on Thursday. Next Monday, Friends Academy will be at PDS for a 5 p.m. contest.

The Hill game followed a familiar pattern that has been repeated time and time again when the two teams have met. The games are always well played affairs, with little or no rough tactics, but unfortunately for PDS fans, Hill always comes away on top. Last Friday's contest was no exception.

Bill Rossmassler gave the Blue and White an early lead with five minutes gone in the first period, assisted by Eric Jensen and Eric Ott. The home team tied it at 1-1 with 6:05 left in the first.

The second period was scoreless until just 19 seconds remained, when Hill scored to make it 2-1. A shorthanded tally a little over a minute into the final period gave Hill a 3-1 margin, and it added another insurance goal with 11 minutes left. Mark Egner made it 4-2 with about a minute left, assisted by Ott and Jensen.

The Delbarton game, found both teams struggling on defense, but PDS finally emerged with a 6-4 victory. The Blue and White built a 4-1 lead on goals by Egner, Mac McDougald, Jensen and Rossmassler over the course of two periods.

In the third period, Delbarton squared matters at 4-4 in the space of one minute and 40 seconds. PDS was stunned, but not out, and 20 seconds after that outburst, it went ahead 5-4 on a goal by Geordie McLaughlin. Jensen added his second goal to make it a 6-4 final.

WIN ONE, LOSE ONE

PHS .500 in CVC League. The Princeton High School basketball team split two Colonial Valley Conference league games last week, bowing to Notre Dame, 69-57, Friday and topping West Windsor, 67-64, earlier in the week.

The split evened the Little Tigers' league record at 3-3; it is 3-5 overall. While PHS coach Marv Trotman said that the Irish loss was "not devastating, we have to look forward to playing in the state tournament." To qualify, a team has to have won 40 percent of its games by the cutoff date.

Looking ahead to upcoming league encounters with McCorristin and Ewing — both of whom already own wins over PHS — Trotman observed, "It's not an easy road ahead." The Little Tigers will be at McCorristin Thursday night and play host to Ewing Monday evening at 8. Tuesday they will be at Steinert.

Late in the second period, PHS owned a 29-19 lead over the visiting — and favored — Notre Dame quintet, which came to town with a 9-2 record. Larry McKellar had tossed in 12 of his 15 points and Kyle Hayes had added nine of the 15 he was to score. The home team was in control and the Irish in disarray.

"Unfortunately, we forgot how we got there," said Trotman. "We were doing what we do best — patient, playing good defense, rebounding well ... we just had a complete breakdown. We just did not maintain the consistency we have to have.

Playing Our Game. "We had them playing our game. We did exactly what we had worked on. It is disappointing in a sense," continued Trotman. "Maybe we learned something from it."

From that 29-19 deficit, Notre Dame scored the next eight points to trail by only two at intermission. "I think we would have been depressed if we would have gone in the locker room down by seven or ten," said Irish coach Dave Millinowics. "We're not a come-from-behind team."

...To Your Health!

with
Anne Knudson-Fitzpatrick

Joseph Beylis
PRINCETON NAUTILUS FITNESS CENTER

Welcome!

Last week we defined the term "cardiovascular" as cardio—meaning heart—and vascular—referring to the arteries and capillaries within the tissues. In this week's column we will discuss cardiovascular fitness.

The way to improve your level of cardiovascular fitness is to overload the heart, which, like any other muscle, will respond to exercise. If it works harder than it normally has to, it will grow bigger and stronger, which allows for a more efficient heart and circulatory system. In the same manner, the heart of a sedentary person is smaller than the heart of an active one. This can be attributed to atrophy of the heart muscle, just as a thigh muscle would be considerably smaller after having a leg cast removed.

The best way to determine how hard your heart is working is by measuring your pulse rate. In most people, the pulse can be felt wherever a large artery lies near the surface. The easiest place to check your pulse is at the carotid artery on one side of your throat—either just above the collarbone or below the jaw. Be sure not to close off the second carotid artery on the other side while you are doing this or you may shut down the blood supply to your brain. (You may prefer to check the radial artery in the wrist.) You should count your pulse for 10 seconds and then multiply by six.

The best way to exercise the heart is to raise your pulse to about 70 percent of your maximum heart rate for a minimum of 10-12 minutes, three to four times a week. To figure out your maximum attainable rate, take 220 and subtract your age. For example, a person 40 years old would have a maximum heart rate of 180 beats per minute.

To train at 70 percent of 180 would be 123 beats per minute. This is assuming no underlying heart or respiratory disease or other condition which would be adversely affected by exercise exists. It is a good idea to have a physical examination before starting any exercise program. Once you have a doctor's approval, you can start by walking and progress to jogging. Remember, not everyone has to be a marathon runner.

To make sure it didn't have to come from behind again, ND continued its scoring in the third period to build a 50-39 advantage. Once again, the victors got the bulk of their points from their two top scorers, Dave Smolka and Cliff Flowers, who combined for 51. PHS didn't help matters in the period by turning the ball over nine times and shooting under 50 percent.

The final period, won by ND 26-18, was, said, Trotman, "a parade to the foul line." Hayes fouled out with 15 points — he could have had 30 easy, claimed Trotman — and Dave Barclay added 12 for the Little Tigers.

McKellar Scores 20. Against West Windsor, McKellar enjoyed his best offensive game of the season, connecting for 20 points, most coming on driving layups to the hoop. He got a lot of outside help from Paul Keaney who tossed in 16 points, and Terry Phox and Hayes combined for 19 more.

PHS jumped to an 11-4 lead but eight straight enabled the Pirates to get back in the game. The half ended tied at 27, but not before there were 12 lead changes.

In the third period, WW senior guard, 5-7 Raj Yande continued to have a hot hand as he pumped in eight points to run his total to a game-high 26 (11-for-16 from the floor). That drew the attendtion of the Little Tigers, who keyed on him the rest of the game and shut Yande down in the final period. "Their little guy was killing us," agreed Trotman. "But after we cut him off none of their guys were looking to shoot."

PHS began the decisive final period by scoring six unanswered points to go eight up. With three minutes remaining the home-team Pirates had cut that to one, but PHS sealed its win on two more buckets by McKellor ond four free throws by Tim Kennedy.

"STALE" HUN BEATEN

On Mat by George School. "We've gone stale without wrestling for so long," commented Hun wrestling conch Dave Fans this week, after his team had dropped a 47-18 decision to George School. Last week's match with Neumann Prep was cancelled because of a scheduling mix-up, Faus reported.

Against George School, Hun's 121-pounder Rick Gallin won a superior 13-0 decision, John Crater carved out an 11-6 decision at 147 pounds and Todd Lapani battled his opponent to a 10-10 tie in their 157-pound meeting. Hun's only pin was fashioned by Scot Crater at 134 pounds. He decked his opponent in 1:23.

Hun (4-4) made it easier for George by forfeiting two matches and because of sickness in the starting lineup Faus had to start two from the jayvee squad. In addition, Hun's attitude about the match soured, Faus said, when it also had to forfeit the 107 pound bout.

Hun's Jeff Silver, who suffers from asthma, was leading his opponent, 6-2, when during an injury timeout, he took a breath from a breathalyzer medication. Hun had to forfeit the match when it was ruled Silver had illegally taken medicine during the match. "It kind of changed our whole attitude," said Faus.

Hun will entertain Newark Academy this Wednesday afternoon at 4 and then participate for the first time in the Tatnell School Tournament in Delaware. It is one of two schools from New Jersey invited. "It is the first time they had invited schools from outside their area (seven are competing) and I'm hoping to come back with a few individual champions," said Faus.

On Monday Hun will play host to Lawrence High in a 4:30 match.

PHS SCARES HORNETS

Before Losing, 74-44. At the end of the first period Monday, the winless (0-8) Princeton High School girls basketball team was leading undefeated (13-0) and second-ranked Hamilton High School, 12-6.

Princeton's bid for a spectacular upset was soon blown oway, however, as the Hornets overwhelmed the Little Tigers in the second period, 26-3. The final was Hamilton 74-PHS 44. Kathy Kahny led PHS with 16 points, while Hamilton's Patty Helmlinger was high for the victors with 20.

On Friday, Notre Dame, behind a good defense, crushed PHS, 69-29, as Irish sophomore Colleen Flynn held Princeton's high scorer, Monica Greenland to four points. None of the Little Tigers wns able to reach double figures.

Earlier in the week, PHS led West Windsor 21-20 at the half in a Colonial Valley Conference game, but the visiting Pirates won the second half, 30-15, for a 50-36 win.

Greenland wns high for PHS with 11 points and Tanya Hemmingway nnd Paige Waldren combined for 15 more but they couldn't offset Saundra Gore, who scored 10 of her 14 points in the second half for WW, or Carla Thomas, who also had 14 for the victors.

SKI TROPHIES PILE UP

For Anne Knudson. Princeton's Anne Knudson-Fitzpatrick wears two hats.

During the week, she oversees operation of the Princeton Nautilus Fitness Center in the Princeton Shopping Center which she owns; on weekends, as the state's top skier, she is out collecting more trophies. Both businesses are booming.

On Sunday, Anne won the N.J. Giant Slalom Championship held at New York's Hutner Mountain. The previous weekend she placed second in the 1982 Council Cup Championships held at Pico Peak in Vermont. Drawing entrants from New England to Virginia, the Council Cup pits contestants in the downhill, giant slalom and dual giant slalom where two skiers compete head-to-head at the same time. "That's exciting," said Anne.

She also picked up the Cumulative Cup 1981 Garden State Championsbip trophy which is based on a point system involving ski races in the state throughout the year.

"we just don't have the bodies," continues to struggle. Last week, the Little Tigers lost, 38-18, to Allentown and 45-12 to West Windsor. Their record is 1-5.

This week, PHS will entertain Lawrence High in a Colonial Valley Conference match starting at 8 and on Monday evening it will be at Ewing in another CVC match.

"I think we are starting to wrestle better," said DiPano. "It's just that the level of competition is so high for us. There is no mystery," he added, "to the Conference concerning the coaching or the level of wrestling. We can handle that."

What he can't handle at the moment is the lack of experience and lack of competition within the PHS squad. The biggest thing, LiPano noted, "is that there is no competition in the room. You've got to be pushed a little bit. If you're not, the rate of improvement is hindered. It's our biggest problem so far."

On his own, DiPano has started a wrestling clinic at the PHS gym Saturday mornings for those in grades 4 through 8. He is hoping to receive permission to go into the Middle School and recruit, something he hasn't received so far.

PHS Has Lead. Against Allentown, PHS was ahead, 12-11, at the end of the 121-pound match but failed to win any of the remaining eight. Freshman Dave Schwartz pinned Kevin Goldberg in 3:31 in the opening match, while Nick Hastings won 7-0 at 114 pounds and veteran Josh Miller decisioned Mike Brower, 10-5, at 121. Princeton's other points came when Allentown forfeited the heavyweight match.

Against West Windsor, Hastings got half of Princeton's points with a 5:10 fall over Clark Huang. Brian O'Grady decisioned the Pirates' 134-pounder Kevin Kehoe, 5-2, and Adam Cote of PHS stopped Tim Houtenville, 9-6, in their 157-pound match.

In the opening match, Schwartz was leading West Windsor's David Cummings before he got pinned in 5:22. "I think he'll beat Cummings in the Districts," predicted DiPano.

PANTHERS NOW 0-14

After Two More Losses. The winless Princeton Day basketball was under no illusions about the games it had to play on the Steinert and Lawrenceville courts this past weekend, and the results bore no surprises. The Panthers lost both contests by wide margins, and now have dropped 14 in a row.

On Friday night, Steinert led by just five at the end of the first quarter, 11-6, but then poured in 25 points in the second to build a 36-16 lead at the half. The third period was more of the same, with the home team scoring in 24 more, to just eight for PDS. It was a 78-41 final, with Scott Roberts high man for the Blue and White with 12. Andy Bing added nine.

The following afternoon at Lawrenceville, PDS made the score more respectable, 83-61, led by Jon McConnaughy's 26-point effort. Jeff Pearlman had 11.

The Larries upped their record to 7-2, with a fine first period effort, which saw them take a 22-10 lead. PDS played a stronger second quarter, almost equalling the winners in points scored, 15-14. However, Lawrenceville again had a decided edge in the third.

Following a home game scheduled for this past Tuesday afternoon against Pennington, the Panthers will take to the road again Friday for an 8 p.m. contest against Peddie.

VICTORY STRING ENDS

For Hun Basketball Team. The unbeaten streak ended last week.

The Hun basketball team, off to a 9-0 start this season, lost its first game last week to Delbarton, 49-46, and then lost again, 76-64, on Friday to Peddie, a team it had beaten in December en route to winning the Peddie School Tournament.

Peddie (8-6) outscored Hun 40-28 in the first half and then played Hun even in the second for its 12-point win. The Hun defense could not contain the Falcons' George Rawding who tossed in 34 points, nor Brett Pasher, who added 18 for the victors. Hun was led by Mark Murphy's 23 points. Teammates Gary Marder and Andy Marlatt had 11 and eight respectively.

Last week at Morristown, Delbarton (9-2) capitalized on a 15-6 third-period advantage to take the lead over Hun. With minutes remaining, the Green Wave had a seemingly comfortable nine-point lead when Hun's Murphy connected on four straight shots to cut the margin to one.

With three seconds left, Delbarton's Dave Reed converted two free throws to clinch the win. Paul Franzoni paced Hun with 16 points, followed by Kris Wronski who had 11 and Murphy who contributed 10.

In upcoming games, Hun will try to get back on track against visiting Rutgers Prep this Wednesday afternoon in a 3:30 contest. It will be at Blair Academy Saturday afternoon and play host to Delbarton again on Tuesday.

WINNERS NAMED

In Elks' "Hoop Shoot" Contest. Matt Lubas, his younger brother, Brian, and Rickie Lloyd have won the championships of the Princeton Elks Hoop Shoot Contest, the largest free-throw shooting contest for youngsters in the country.

Matt won for the second year in a row in the boys 10 to 11 year group (he was an 8-9 victor last year) while Brian was this year's 8-9 winner. Rickie won the boys 12-13 division, two years after he had won the boys 10-11 group. All three will advance to district finals competition.

Each competitor in the Hoop Shoot takes a total of 25 free throws. National finalists have averaged around 90 percent accuracy in recent years.

STUART IS UNBEATEN

In Basketball. Stuart Country Day School of the Sacred Heart, seeded first in the New Jersey independent school basketball conference, remained unbeaten last week with a 53-31 victory over Kent Place.

Stuart was led by freshman Sharon Rose who tossed in 24 points and by Sophomore Amy Masonis who added 20. Senior Chris Leahy contributed 13 rebounds and five points while teammate Pam Jackson had four points. Coach Tom Celinski described the win as "our best team performance of the year."

Stuart will be at George School this Wednesday and at Peddie School on Friday.

EXHIBITION SUNDAY

By Gymnastic School. The girls and boys competitive gymnastics teams from Alt's Gymnastic School will give an exhibition Sunday at 2 at the school located at 745 Alexander Road.

They will demonstrate progressions of skills in tumbling and on various apparatus. Also included in the program will be dance and competitive routines. Admission is $1 for adults, 50 cents for children.

HUN QUINTET SELECTED

For Sportsmanship Award. A 1980-81 Sportsmanship Award has been presented to the Hun School basketball team by the Central Jersey District of the International Association of Approved Basketball Officials. It was presented by Vince McKelvey, president of the district association, to Kris Wronski, Hun's basketball captain.

Hun's selection was based on performance during the 1980-81 season.

Bob Hendrickson, Hun athletic director and basketball coach, commented, "I'm especially proud of this award which represents not only the attitude of Hun players, but of coaches and spectators as well."

Palmer Square Plans Bring Change to Kopp's Cycle Shop; It Will Move to New Home on Witherspoon St. This Week

This week, for the third time in its history, Kopp's Cycle Shop, a Princeton institution since 1891, will move to a new location.

Located at 14 John Street since 1946, Kopp's on February 1, will move a few blocks north to 43 Witherspoon Street, into space formerly occupied by Gale Cleaners.

Although change has not been part of Kopp's' image, it became an indirect victim to extensive change being planned for the Palmer Square area by the Collins Corporation, which purchased the square last year. Owner Fred Kuhn admitted that he was "sick" when he received a letter notifying him that the building would be razed by its owner, The English Shop, to provide parking. But now, he says, he is looking forward to it.

"I'm a great believer in fate," said Kuhn, who took over Kopp's thirty years ago in 1952. "If you're going somewhere and get a flat tire on the road, maybe it means you shouldn't have been going. A lot of times, things work out for the best.

The Kopp's building on narrow John Street, just in from Nassau, is believed to have originally been a barn, according to Mr. Kuhn's son, Charlie, who has worked with him for the past eight years. No one seems to know for certain.

He added that while the Princeton Historical Society cannot pinpoint the date of the building, it is believed to have been constructed in the early 1900's. It's only claim to fame, he said, is that it was the only building in the area not razed when Palmer Square was built in the late 1930's.

As operated through the years, Kopp's would give a modern merchandiser nightmares. Open space? There isn't any. Traffic patterns? None. One side is cluttered with parts and the repair end of the business; on the other new Schwinn and Peugeot bicycles are crammed together like sardines. In the middle, sort of a cluttered no man's land, is a counter and cash register.

All Kopp's offered is what customers care about: good reliable bikes and expert repair and service. The cramped quarters didn't prevent Kopp's, Kuhn said, from selling, 1,000 new and used bikes a year.

Though for many merchants last year was not a year to remember, Kuhn reported that in terms of dollars 1981 was up over the previous year. As for the number of units sold, he said that he hasn't figured that out yet.

As the unofficial bike dealer for the nearby university student community, Kopp's does a good business in used bikes. Because a lot of graduate students are here only for a year, they don't want to invest in a new bike, Kuhn observed. Princeton University also has a cycling team and "we take care of their needs," he continued. "Princeton is a good town for bikes. It always has been."

LOOKING FORWARD TO MOVE: Fred Kuhn, owner of Kopp's Cycle Shop on John Street, said he was dismayed when he first learned that he would have to move. But now he says he is looking forward to his new location on Witherspoon Street. Story this page.

As one of the oldest Schwinn dealers in the area — the only one in business longer that Kuhn says he is aware of is George Quigley, a Manville postmaster who has been selling Schwinns part-time since the early 1930's — Kuhn sees some advantages in the move to Witherspoon Street.

He has, he says, a five-year lease, about the same amount of space and expects more traffic. "We're right next to the public library." Already, he said, passersby have been knocking on the window, with the door locked, after seeing a sign indicating the site will be the future home of Kopp's Cycle.

A Little Souvenir. Kuhn, New York born, has always had an interest in bikes and cycling. As a youth he used to tour and race them, and he pointed to what he called "a little souvenir," a scar on his neck. During a race on an indoor track in Newark, he recalled, the rim of his wheel broke and a portion of the frame went through his throat to his tongue.

Through his racing exposure, he was offered a position with Macy's training school in New York where he became a buyer in its bike department for two and a half years. It ended when World War II came along. Macy's, Kuhn recalled, was a good school for merchandising. At the time, he said, it was the equal of Abercrombie and Fitch in sporting goods.

He put the merchandising knowledge he gained at Macy's to good use. Even though it was the end of the Depression, he recalled, he noticed that 300 to 500 bikes were being sent to Princeton. That was a lot of bikes for a small town. He recorded that in his mind and years later it prompted him to locate here.

After the war he applied for a job with Schwinn, a Chicago-based firm, which, at the time, was not well known in the East but later came on with a bang, said Kuhn. For 12 years he was Schwinn sales rep, covering an area from New York to Tennessee. "Now they have about 20 guys working the area," Kuhn said.

He worked for Schwinn until 1958 but before that he had started working part-time as manager at Kopp's.

Kopp's then was located on Nassau Street. On one side was the cycle shop operated by Edward Kopp, the third generation of the Kopp family to run the business, said Kuhn; on the other side was a jewelry and watchmaker shop owned by James Campbell.

"When they went into three gears, the gearing mechanism was similar to a clock movement," commented Kuhn. "Since every corner store was starting to sell watches and watch manufacturers were beginning to use cheaper, pressed movements, Mr. Campbell got out and stayed in the bicycle end. He asked me, "What am I going to do now that I own the business completely, and I told him any time you're ready to sell, Jim, give me a call."

Mr. Campbell, whose son served the Township as police chief, died in 1953, one year after he had sold the business to Kuhn's wife.

At the beginning, it was hard to get people to know where this part of John Street was, conceded Kuhn — the shop had moved to 10 Chambers Street before locating on John — but over the years he reports that he has had customers from as far away as Toronto and Vancouver. "People on their way to Florida would stop," he said. He estimates about thirty percent of his trade is from out of town.

In summing up his life, one which he says has been devoted entirely to bikes in one way or another, Kuhn said, "I have no regrets. Racing ... that's all in the past. I never look back."

What he enjoys most now, he says, is being around young people, getting them off the streets and out of beer halls. He does this primarily as president — for the past ten years — of the Century Road Club of America, the oldest bicycle club in the country. Kopp's Cycle Shop is the headquarters for the Princeton Century Road Club, which sponsors training races every week.

TRUSTEE NAMED

By Boychoir School. Nick Carnevale, president of Walter B. Howe, Inc., has been appointed a trustee of the American Boychoir School.

Mr. Carnevale is a past president of the Rotary Club of Princeton and of the Chamber of Commerce of the Princeton Area. He also has served as an elder of St. Andrew's Church, now merged with Nassau Presbyterian Church.

Mr. Carnevale's firm, Walter B. Howe, Inc. has joined the American Boychoir's Catalyst Founder program which is designed to encourage businesses to support the Boychoir School through gifts, leadership and contact with the business community. Each dollar donated through this program is divided equally between the general operating needs of the School and an endowed scholarship fund to benefit a Mercer area student.

EARNINGS ANNOUNCED

By Bank Corporation. New Jersey National Corporation has announced initial results for the year-end 1981.

Preliminary unaudited figures indicate income before securities transactions of $9,617,098 or $5.15 per share, compared to $7,521, 645 or $4.03 per share in 1980. This reflects an increase of 28 percent.

New Jersey National Corporation chairman John H. Walter attributed the record-setting earnings to steps taken at year-end 1980 to dispose of low-yield, long-term securities and reinvest in short-term current rate securities. Another factor was the sale of the assets of Underwood Mortgage and Title Co., one of the Corporation's three subsidiaries.

The principle subsidiary of New Jersey National Corporation is New Jersey National Bank.

RISE REPORTED

In Banks' Earnings. United Jersey Banks reported per share earnings gains of 10 percent for the full year and 5.1 percent for the fourth quarter of 1981. First National Bank of Princeton is a member bank.

For the full-year 1981, income before securities transactions was $16,675,000 or $2.96 per share, compared with $14,935,000 or $2.69 per share in 1980. Net income for 1981 was $16,370,000 or $2.90 per share, compared with $14,896,000 or $2.69 per share in the previous year.

T. Joseph Semrod, chairman and president of United Jersey Banks, said the earnings gain "reflects an ongoing commitment to balancing our loan portfolio by increasing commercial loans, while decreasing our volume of low-yielding, fixed-rate, long-term mortgages." United Jersey's long-term, fixed-rate mortgages were reduced by almost $39 million, while commercial loans grew $70 million when compared with 1980.

For the quarter ended December 31, 1981, income before securities transactions was $4,658,000 or 82 cents per share, compared with $4,382,000 or 78 cents per share in the 1980 fourth quarter. Net income for the last quarter of 1981 was $4,383,000 or 77 cents per share, compared with $4,395,000 or 79 cents per share reported in the fourth quarter of 1980.

Princeton Regional School HIGHLIGHTS

Highlights is sponsored and prepered by the Perent Teecher Organizetion of the Princeton Regional Schools.

JOHN WITHERSPOON MIDDLE SCHOOL - House One has recently hosted two very interesting speakers. On the first occasion, John Degman, former N.J. Attorney General, gave a personal account of his experiences in seeking nomination to the N.J. Governor's race. The lively discussion inspired by his talk provided an enriching resource to the New Jersey Studies unit.

A second guest, Mrs. Frances Hong from the People's Republic of China, gave the students a view of her life in Pre- and Post-Revolutionary China Mrs. Hong, a Professor of Teacher Training, is on sabbatical and is visiting American schools and universities.

House Seven plans a three-day venture with "Luhazrio" along with the rest of "C-wing". Students will organize satellite governments of Luhazrio, the mother country. This exciting simulation game is an annual event, eagerly anticipated. House Seven will also soon begin work on its yearly three-week Great Debate unit. This unit will provide a formal experience with the dehate process.

RIVERSIDE - The entire Riverside student body delighted in tumbles, layouts, front and side aerials and more, performed by students of Alt's Gymnastics School. The demonstration by four girls (aged 9-11) drew enthusiastic applause from Riverside students. The awe and admiration was evident in the many questions they asked of the gymnastics instructors.

Ute Alt, who participated in gymnastic competition in college hefore turning to teaching the sport, explained that gymnastics offers many benefits, such as confidence, poise and self-discipline.

The hest part of this special demonstration is knowing that the gymnastics instructors will be hack, teaching interested students in Grades 3, 4 and 5 in the new Potential for Enrichment and Performance (PEP) Program.

Riverside's nurse, Jackie Wadsworth, is proud of her fifth grade First Aid students who recently administered appropriate First Aid to a teacher who had fallen and as a result required stitches. As part of the First Aid course Princeton's paramedics, Joe Durman and Kevin Kelty, taught artificial respriation to Mrs. Valley's and Mr. Long's classes and also oriented the students to their rescue truck.

COMMUNITY PARK SCHOOL - Martin Luther King's birthday was observed at an assemhly with opening remarks about his life hy guest speaker Henry Drewry from Princeton University. Mrs. Gilpin's class presented seven skits on prejudice which were the culmination of many discussions on the suhject during the term. They portrayed racial and religious prejudices as well as prejudices against people who are in some way different from ourselves, drawing them from personal experiences, or from people the children knew.

Mr. Murray's class presented an assembly about the Revolutionary War, which they have been studying in class. They re-enacted the Boston Massacre, the Boston Tea Party, Valley Forge, Washington Crossing the Delaware, and the signing of the Declaration of Independence using scripts the children developed themselves.

The Trinity All Saints choir presented excerpts from Gian-Carlo Menotti's opera, "Amahl and the Night Visitors."

LITTLEBROOK - Mini-Courses are underway with many interesting topics. Parents who wish to attend any classes should call Jo Anne Ramsey, 921-0221, or Pegi Johnson 921-3117, for information.

Dr. Martin Luther King's birthday was celebrated with a special assembly. The kindergarten sang "Whole World in His Hands" with the first grade classes. Mrs. Van Dyck's class presented the poem "Dream Variation" by Langston Hughes.

Margaret Pazdan, our school nurse for 19 years, celebrated School Nurse Day by giving a breakfast party for the children in Doris Tazelaar's Special Education Class.

PARENTING WOIIKSHOPS - January 28 at 7:30 p.m. is the date of the first in a series of Parenting Workshops. These Workshops, heid at John Witherspoon School, are presented by the Princeton PTO Council and are intended for any interested parents. The first workshop topic is "Teaching our Kids to Be Street-Wise." Subjects to be discussed are rape and safety, shoplifting and stealing, and how kids get into trouble. Workshop leaders nre: Det. William Clark, Princeton Borough Police, Det. Jerry Offredo, Princeton Township Police and William Johnson, Middle School Principal.

Five workshops, developed in response to n parenting questionnaire, will be held this winter and spring. Dntes of future workshops are Feb. 23, March 29, April 28, and May 26.

LET'S TALK ABOUT

SPARE THE SHEARS, SPOIL THE EVERGREEN!
with Sam De Turo
Woodwinds Associates

Surely nothing is lovelier than evergreens framed and trimmed with snow or, just adding color to your grounds during these gloomy winter days. While you're admiring them, though, check to see if they're doing everything you want them to so far as shape, position, and screening capability are concerned.

Too many homeowners have allowed their evergreens to grow out of bounds and accumulate a mass of inner deadwood. Generally this occurs anywhere from five to ten years after planting (Hemlock, for example, may grow five to ten feet in a single year.) If their tops were trimmed back judiciously several times during that period, the plant would fill in at the bottom and much better serve its purpose, whether as a screen, as a windbreak, or as part of a group planting.

Arborvitae, Spruce or Juniper may look fine as foundation plantings for a few years; unchecked, their growth may eventually block off sunlight from windows, and, in fact, become so unwieldy that trimming may do little good. It is far more sensible to keep them cut down to size before they get out of hand.

Once the desired shape is attained, prune the plant periodically to keep it that way. One late-winter and two summer prunings are far more effective than one severe summer pruning. This is particularly true when dealing with an evergreen hedge. In this situation, always leave the base slightly broader than the top to allow sunlight to strike the lower branches, thereby avoiding "leggy" growth as the shaded branches reach for more light.

Remember, too, that the drought we suffered last year caused, in many cases, considerable die-back of the root systems. Pruning then becomes essential from the standpoint of health, as well as aesthetics.

WOODWINDS is always happy to discuss any problems you may be experiencing with your trees and shrubs. Please call us. We have the answers!

Clergy Column

(The following article is the first of a renewed series of monthly articles by members of the Princeton Clergy Association. The views expressed in these articles are those of the writer, and not necessarily those of the Clergy Association, or of Town Topics. They are meant to stimulate thought on community issues that are also concerns of the religious community.)

The Ministry of Peacemaking

"Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called children of God" (Matthew 5:9).

Increasingly today, these words of Jesus from the Sermon on the Mount are being seen by people of faith as being central to their mission in the modern world. Particularly in the nuclear age, with the world under the constant threat of total annihilation, a groundswell of concern and action for peace and nuclear disarmament is emerging from the American religious community.

A number of Protestant denominations, including the United Church of Christ, American Baptist, United Presbyterian, Unitarian Universalist, Mennonite, Bretheren, and Quakers have made peacemaking their top priority and-or endorsed the Mutual US-USSR Nuclear Weapons Freeze as a concrete step toward nuclear disarmament. Numerous regional bodies of the Episcopal, United Methodist, and Lutheran churches have acted similarly.

Perhaps even more significantly, America's largest religious grouping, the Roman Catholic community, is becoming increasingly outspoken in opposition to the arms race, especially the nuclear arms race. In recent months, over two dozen Roman Catholic Bishops have made major statements against the arms race. In conjunction with Vatican II and Papal statements, the leadership of the Roman church is clearly denouncing the use of nuclear weapons under any circumstances. Some Bishops are going even further by saying it is a sin to continue building nuclear weapons, calling for individual responses such as quitting jobs related to the nuclear weapon industry, and non-payment of taxes which support nuclear weapons, as well as political responses such as the Freeze.

Here in Princeton, the religious community has been instrumental in launching the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament to help mobilize the local community in the effort for peace and disarmament. The Coalition has conducted two successful teaching conferences; a course at the Adult School; a pulpit exchange on Peace Sabbath; a petition drive for the Nuclear Freeze; and various speakers on disarmament, such as a member of the West German Parliament who spoke at the end of November.

Role of Church. The most recent teaching conference, held on September 26-27 at Nassau Presbyterian Church, was sponsored by 26 area religious organizations. While many of the sponsoring congregations weren't unanimous in their opposition to the nuclear arms race, there was a growing sense that this issue warrants serious attention and action. Many of these congregations later supported the Nuclear Freeze petition campaign.

In Europe, where a huge peace movement has surfaced this Fall, the church has also played a leading role. In West Germany, over 70,000 Protestants demonstrated against new nuclear weapons in Europe during their national convention. In the Netherlands, the Inter-Church Peace Council was a leading force in organizing a demonstration of 300,000 in Amsterdam.

While this strong involvement of religious communities in the effort for disarmament and peace may seem surprising to some, disturbing to others, I believe it is a sign of this growing faithfulness to the Prince of Peace. The overwhelming thrust of Biblical, theological, and ethical imperatives is to work for peace and justice. In the nuclear age, this must involve the church in the struggle to reduce and ultimately eliminate the horrifying possibility of nuclear war through multilateral nuclear disarmament.

The German pastor Martin Neimoller, who was part of the Confessing Church which opposed Hitler, compares the immense challenge facing the church today with that which faced the German church in the Nazi era. Will today's religious community silently consent to preparation for mass extermination, or will it firmly, faithfully, and courageously resist such preparation? When I consider the effects of even a single modern nuclear weapon, I must agree that the mass killing that would result can't be significantly distinguished from the murder at the Nazi death camps.

I hope and pray that we will not repeat the tragic complicity of the German church with mass extermination. The recent emergence of the religious community in the Ministry of Peacemaking is an encouraging sign that we will not.

BOYS INVITED

To Join Christian Service Unit. A registration night is planned for Monday by Christian Service Brigade unit 2805, sponsored by Westerly Road Church. Boys from age 8 through high school are invited to the meeting, which will be held from 7 to 8:30 p.m. at the church.

Christian Service Brigade is a national organization which provides several programs for boys. For the last three years Westerly Road Church has sponsored a Stockade for boys from 8 to 11 years old. A Battalion is now being formed for boys 12 and up.

All boys are welcome to attend. Parents with questions may call Rick Peterson at 921-7534.

EVENTS AT SEMINARY

For Black History Month. The Association of Black Seminarians at Princeton Theological Seminary will hold several events in February for Black History Month.

The month will begin with a Black history exhibit displayed in the Seminary's Campus Center on February 3 beginning at noon, and a worship service at 7:30 p.m. in Miller Chapel featuring Black poetry and a Gospel concert.

On Friday, February 5, the Rev. Dr. Joan Salmon Campbell, Pastor of St. Paul's Presbyterian Church in Kansas City, will lead the Seminary's Chapel service at 10 a.m., and lecture on "Women, Great is Your Faith" at 12:15 p.m. in the Main Lounge of the Campus Center.

A graduate of the University of Rochester's Eastman School of Music, Dr. Salmon Campbell received the Master of Divinity degree from Inter-Met Seminary in Washington, D.C., and the Doctor of Divinity degree from Central America University. Her career first as a professional singer took her throughout the United States and to Australia, Poland, Yugoslavia, and Hungary. She wrote and arranged "The Black Folks Legacy to America," a historical sketch of Black people in America through their sacred music, performed by both the Trinity Touring Choir of Rochester, New York, and Joan and Company of Washington, D.C.

As a Presbyterian clergywoman, she has served pastorates in Maryland, Virginia, and Washington, D.C..

A full schedule of the month's events is available from the Seminary. The public is invited.

TO CELEBRATE 150 YEARS

At Blawenburg Church. The Blawenburg Reformed Church is making plans for its 150th anniversary in March. According to Grace Terhune, who is heading the anniversary celebration committee, the congregation, the community, other churches and the general public are all invited to share in the occasion.

Dr. James I. Cook, who was the pastor at Blawenburg during the 1950's, will come from Holland, Mich. to preach at the anniversary service on Sunday, March 7th at 10 a.m. Dr. Cook is presently on the faculty of Western Theological Seminary in Holland, and this year is vice president of the General Synod of the Reformed Church in America.

Other events in the celebration of its 150 year history will include a display of records and papers relating to the church's history and a compilation of memories of the church by present and former members. Persons with such contributions should contact the church office at 466-3108. A history of the church, "By Grace Through Faith: Blawenburg Reformed Church, 1832-1982" by David W. Cochran will be available at the anniversary celebration.

The Blawenburg Reformed Church was established in 1831 as an offspring of the Harlingen Reformed Church. It is a congregation of the Reformed Church in America, the oldest Protestant communion in the United States. It had its roots in the Dutch settlers of this era and follows a presbyterian form of government.

The present church sanctuary on Route 518 in Blawenburg is the original building, built in 1832. The solid Dutch outer construction, with its domed belfry, is only part of the charm of this community landmark. Inside, the hard pews, each with a door, the balcony columns, the chandelier and the original imperfect window panes make this a building of great beauty.

BULLETIN NOTES

The Missionary Society of the First Baptist Church, John Street and Paul Robeson Place, will celebrate its 82nd anniversary with a state missionary pageant banquet Saturday at 6:30. Banquet tickets are $10.

Mrs. Etta Smith is president of the Missionary Society, and the Rev. Edward Smith, pastor of First Baptist.

There will be a new member orientation session at the United Methodist Church Sunday from 7-8:30 p.m. at the church, Nassau Street and Vandeventer Avenue. A second session will be held on Sunday February 7, also at 7, with reception of new members on Sunday, February 21.

The board of trustees of the United Methodist Church have elected new officers. They are, president, Bill Pote; vice-president, George Lee, and Secretary, Walter Johnston.

Other members are Ken Groo, Al Hopkins, Bill Bleacher, Walter Nelson, Hugh Brandt and Alice Leppert.

Stroke Victims

Perceptible improvement in Prof. Somers' comprehension and speech continue to make his speech therapist optimistic. She is Dr. Mary Jo Santo Pietras, a Rutgers University professor of pathology who has been working with a new technique called "melodic intonation therapy." This therapy emphasizes the right side of the brain, where music is controlled, as opposed to the left, which controls speech.

By presenting everyday phrases, such as "How are you? I am fine." in singsong intonation, which patients pick up more readily, the bope is that they will eventually transfer the ability to express such phrases from the right to the left side and be able to use them in regular speech.

Mrs. Murphy and Prof. Somers are both patients of Benjamin Wright, M.D. Impressed by their persistence in seeking out innovative ways of trying to overcome disability, Dr. Wright has concluded that a "stroke network" is needed to pool information on resources for stroke victims both within the community and farther afield.

A Structure. He calls it the Rutgers-Princeton Community Stroke Network and has appointed Mrs. Murphy coordinator and Prof. Somers vice president. Dr. Margaret Collins, former pathologist in the Princeton Medical Center laboratories, is president.

At the January meeting of the Mercer County Stroke Club at Merwick, some 60 members (stroke victims) and associates (their families) crowded into the Merwick activities room to hear what Dr. Wright and a panel of experts in related fields envisage for stroke care in the coming year.

Dr Wright, who set up the home care program at the Medical Center and admits to having a home care bias, suggested that there was "a job to be done" in helping stroke patients and their families find the resources in the community to assist them in long term care.

"In short-term, acute care, we do all right," he said, "but long-term care is loaded with social problems. Premature retirement — change of role. Suppose a person has always done everything and all of a sudden someone else has to do half of it — maybe the left half.

"Is there enough family there? Are they up to taking on this job? What about resources — do you have to hire help?"

Special Training. Referring to the home health aide who has made a specialty of stroke care through her work with Mrs. Murphy, Dr. Wright said, "We need to clone Lucille Rodriguez so we can have many more just like her." As a result of the discussion leading to the formation of the stroke network, the Princeton Homemaker Home Health Aide Service plans to give special training in stroke care to a select group of aides in the same way that the Supportive Care aides were trained in the care of the terminally ill. Mrs. Murphy and Lucille will participate in the training sessions.

Other community facilities and services that Dr. Wrigbt has in mind to assist the stroke patient are the swimming pools, gymnasiums and fitness centers in the area. As a start, Rick Jackson, fitness director of the YMCA, has agreed to see what the Y can do to provide better wheelchair access to its pool.

Dr. Santo Pietras suggests that a day care center is needed, a place to go and not have to sit home and watch TV all day, interaction and stimulation are essential for the rebuilding of speech, and Dr. Santo Pietras is interested too, in bringing the results of recent research to stroke victims. "It sounds terrible to say it," she told stroke Club members, but you have had your stroke at a good time."

With all the new developments in stroke research and care, everyone agrees that the major stumbling block is the inadequacy of third party payment. There continue to be too many stories of premature termination of insurance benefits, policies that cover acute care but not rehabilitation, patients and families that spend many hours each week just trying to process complicated forms — sometimes all for naught.

However, Dr. Wright has set up what he calls a "tough cases" stroke conference at the Medical Center in the hopes of bringing some concerted action between hospitals and rehabilitation agencies such as Merwick to try to get a "squarer deal" from the insurance establishment.

Meanwhile, many stroke victims and their families are benefitting from the support of the Mercer County Stroke Club which was founded by Mrs. George Knaefler in 1974 after her husband suffered a stroke. The club has some 50 members, including the associates from the family, and is "growing all the time."

Members range in age from Dr. William Tucker, who is 93, to women in their mid-40's. Talking about good things that have happened since the last meeting, telephoning one another, forming committees to lobby for greater wheel chair access to public places, the club provides a social meeting ground for its members.

"Support — that's what we're about," says president Joyce Belton who admits to having had very bad aphasia which was almost miraculously cured beginning with her decision to come to club meetings. "We have quite a few success stories," Mrs. Knaefler agrees.

It does seem that things are better today than 10 years ago for the stroke victim and his or her family.
